Headquarters Army of the Potomac, Saturday Evening May 9, 1863.

By a flag of truce to-day we learn of the death of Col. Van Houghten, who was wounded in the leg at the battle of Salem Heights on Monday evening, and taken prisoner. He was a brave man. This afternoon, Gen. Barksdale, Commander at Fredericksburgh, accompanied by several other officers, came down to the bank above the Lacey House, and held an interview with our authorities. Arrangements have been made for the bringing over of our wounded to this side, and they are arriving rapidly. In the morning several Surgeons, detailed from the various regiments, crossed over to administer to their wants.

Barnes' brigade, Griffin's division, which pierced back yesterday to the various fords on the right, to assist in bringing away the pontoons, has returned to-day.

This was the rear brigade of the Fifth army corps, in covering the retreat of the right wing across the river. One thousand will fully cover the loss of this corps.

The figures of the total loss is being much diminished by the coming in of stragglers.

Correspondence of the Philadelphia Press.

Washington, Sunday, May 10—P. M.

I have made diligent inquiries in reply to your dispatch, and state this as the result: Persons have arrived here from the Army of the Potomac, leaving there on Saturday evening, who state that the army is in the best of spirits, with everything in readiness to recross the river. Some corps crossed last evening. The point of crossing is said to be one adopted by Gen. Hooker a few days ago. It is thought the whole army will move together. This is my last information, and as reliable as any information can be not directly from the War Department.

You are aware that the President and Gen. Halleck paid Gen. Hooker an official visit some days since. The fact of the visit is already turned into history, but the results of that trip may yet prove of vast importance to the country. The visit was opportune, and has enabled Gen. Hooker to make one more attempt to execute his admirable plans with some hope of success. Having obtained the permission of the President to recross the Rappahannock, after demonstrating the importance of the movement, Gen. Hooker asked that his communications might be properly guarded in the rear of his army. The promise to attend to this was given, as well as the positive promise that additional means of ammunition and supply should be furnished, and that Gen. Sigel should again lead his troops.

During Wednesday and Thursday Gen. Hooker detailed several regiments to gather up the wounded and bury the dead left on the south bank of the river. These men were relieved continually, and the work proceeded without intermission. The number of rebels found unburied was very large, and it is believed that no effort was made by the enemy to bury his brave men slaughtered by our artillery during the five days' battles at Chancellorsville. Fortunately, the weather was cool, preventing physical decay, and the rain served as a balm to ease the wounded from some of their suffering. The fact that the enemy had left thus suddenly, confirmed Gen. Hooker in the belief that the rebels had been very much cut up, and that they contemplated a retreat, if that course was found practicable. Accordingly, on Thursday afternoon, before the rain had ceased falling, Gen. Hooker ordered forward across the river the First and Fifth Corps d'Armée, under Gen. Sedgwick. Owing to the horrible condition of the roads, but little progress was made, and Gen. Hooker, on Friday, directed his attention to the crossing of the whole army at Banks' and United States Fords. During the day, positions for each corps were designated, and Gen. Hooker was busy in giving instructions to his various Generals, concerning his proposed pursuit and capture of Gen. Lee's army.

Yesterday Gen. Pleasanton's cavalry crossed the river, and proceeded immediately to the front, for the purpose of reconnoitering the enemy's position. Two hours' ride brought them to our old position about Chancellorsville. In this neighborhood no rebels were discovered, except killed and wounded. These were disposed of properly as rapidly as possible. A considerable number of stragglers and skulkers from the rebel army and some of our own men came into our lines yesterday, and gave themselves up. The former protest that they have no feeling in this war, and are willing to take the oath and become good citizens of the United States.

Where have the rebels gone? This question is going around unanswered in the hotels to-day. It is the opinion of the military men that they have fallen back in two columns, one toward Richmond, and another toward Gordonsville, in the hope of concentrating with Longstreet's forces in front of Richmond, once more to give us battle.

The next engagement will take place most probably on or near the Upper Pamunkey River, whither Gen. Hooker is moving as rapidly as possible. Many maintain that the James River will be the next line that the rebels will defend. This may or may not be secure, as Gens. Peck, Keyes and Naglee may decide.

The Richmond and Potomac Railroad, south of Fredericksburgh, will be put in order again as soon as it will be safe to work upon it.

Troops are arriving here again, and it is rumored that another army will advance south to support Gen. Hooker in a day or two.

It is understood that Gen. Buford, with his light brigade, has penetrated to the Alleghany Ridge, in Western Virginia, and that he is now returning, having destroyed the Richmond and Tennessee railroad in several places, captured many prisoners, obtained important information, and burned large quantities of stores intended for the rebel armies in the Southwest.

The report of the capture of Richmond, by the forces of Maj.-Gen. Peck, is entirely discredited here.

The weather is excellent, and the roads are drying rapidly.

LATE NEWS FROM THE RICHMOND PAPERS.

Washington, Monday, May 11.

The Richmond Examiner, of the 7th inst., says that "the destruction of large trains of Government wagons at Aylett's, and stores of grain at that place, is the most serious loss we have suffered from the Federal raid. The Government was deriving large supplies from that section of the State, and unfortunately within the last week largely increased its wagon trains."

Another article says that in consequence of active operations in the field, and limited transportation, the wounded on the field and at Gurnea depot are suffering for food—hence an appeal is made to the benevolent.

THE GREAT RAID IN VIRGINIA.

The Exploits of the Force which Passed Around to Gloucester Point.

COL. KILPATRICK'S REPORT.

Washington, Monday, May 11.

The following was received at headquarters to-day:

Yorktown, Va., May 8.

Maj.-Gen. H. W. Halleck, Commander-in-Chief, United States Army:

General: I have the honor to report that, by direction of Maj.-Gen. Stoneman, I left Louisa Court-house on the morning of the 3d inst., with one regiment (the Harris Light cavalry) of my brigade; reached Hungary, on the Fredericksburgh Railroad, at daylight on the morning of the 4th, destroyed the depot, telegraph wires and railroad for several miles; passed over to the Brook turnpike; drove in the rebel pickets down the pike, across the Brook; charged a battery and forced it to retire to within two miles of the City of Richmond; captured Lieut. Brown, Aid-de-Camp to Gen. Winder, and eleven men within the fortifications; passed down to the left to the Meadow Bridge, on the Chickahominy, which I burned; ran a train of cars into the river; retired to Hanovertown, on the Peninsula; crossed and destroyed the ferry just in time to check the advance of a pursuing cavalry force; burned a train of thirty wagons, loaded with bacon; captured thirteen prisoners, and encamped for the night five miles from the river. I resumed my march at 1 A. M. of the 5th; surprised a force of three hundred cavalry at Aylett's; captured two officers and thirty-three men; burned 56 wagons and the depot, containing upwards of twenty thousand barrels of corn and wheat, quantities of clothing and commissary stores, and safely crossed the Mattapony and destroyed the ferry again, just in time to escape the advance of the rebel cavalry pursuit. Late in the evening I destroyed a third wagon train and depot, a few miles above and west of Tappahannock, on the Rappahannock, and from that point made a forced march of twenty miles, being closely followed by a superior force of cavalry, supposed to be a portion of Stuart's, from the fact that we captured prisoners from the First, Fifth and Tenth Virginia cavalry. At sundown I discovered a force of cavalry drawn up in line of battle above King and Queen Court-house. The strength was unknown, but I at once advanced to the attack, only, however, to discover that they were friends—a portion of the Twelfth Illinois cavalry, who had become separated from the command of Lieut.-Col. Davis, of the same regiment. At 10 A. M., on the 7th, I found safety and rest under our brave old flag, within our lines at Gloucester Point.

The raid and march about the entire rebel army, a march of nearly two hundred miles, has been made in less than five days, with a loss of one officer and thirty-seven men, having captured and paroled upward of 300 men.

I take great pleasure in bringing to your notice the officers of my Staff, Capt. P. Owen Jones, Capt. Armstrong, and Capt. McIrvin, Dr. Hackley and Lieut. Estis, especially the latter, who volunteered to carry a dispatch to Major-Gen. Hooker. He failed in the attempt, but with his escort of ten men, he captured and paroled one Major, two Captains, a Lieutenant and 15 men. He was afterward himself captured, with his escort, and was afterward recaptured by our own forces. He arrived this morning. I cannot praise too highly the bravery, fortitude and untiring energy displayed throughout the march by Lieut.-Col. Davis, and the officers and men of the Ira Harris Light cavalry, not one of whom but was willing to lose his liberty or his life, if he could but aid in the great battle now going on, and win for himself the approbation of his chiefs. Respectfully submitted,

(Signed,) J. KILPATRICK,
Col. Comd'g 1st Brigade 3d Div. Cavalry.

FURTHER INTERESTING PARTICULARS.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Washington, Monday, May 11.

Capt. F. W. Armstrong and Lieut. L. G. Estis, the latter detached from the First Maine cavalry, arrived here to-day from Col. Kilpatrick's raids. After leaving Kelly's Ford on the Rappahannock, Col. Kilpatrick with the Harris Light Cavalry—350 men—was detached from the main force, and striking the Fredericksbugh and Virginia Central Railroads at their junction, destroyed the roads, burned the bridges over the South Anna, and made for Richmond. They encountered a rebel battery of three guns on the route, but flanked and passed it.

This is the force that confounded the rebels in their capital. They rode within one and a half miles of Richmond, in full view of the city, and inside the third line of fortifications. Here they captured a rebel Lieutenant belonging to Gen. Winder's Staff; paroled him, and borrowed his horse. They also planted the Stars and Stripes on the fort which they "took," and it remained there during the ten or fifteen minutes they halted. From here, to avoid Stewart's cavalry, which was on the alert, they struck for Aylett's Ford, on the Mattapony, capturing and burning large depots there containing eight hundred thousand bushels corn and quantities of rebel stores.

They left Kelly's Ford without a day's rations, but out of the captured railroad trains supplied themselves as they went. On the way to Aylett's Station they charged upon a regiment of cavalry drawn up in line of battle on an adjacent plain. Both seemed eager for the combat; but before they met it was obvious they were all Union troops. The seeming foe was the Twelfth Illinois cavalry, part of Gen. Davis' command. They had attempted to gain the Union lines by way of the Peninsula, but had met Wise's brigade at Tunstall's Station, on the West Point and Richmond Railroad, and were obliged to seek another exit. This strange meeting was at King and Qeen's Court-House. From there they pushed on together, and reached Gloucester Point, opposite Yorktown, on Saturday morning last.

This is the fourth time within two years that Col. Kilpatrick has cut the Virginia Central Railroad. Stuart followed them from Richmond to near Gloucester. Capt. Armstrong thinks that if they had summoned terror-stricken Richmond to surrender, the summons would have been obeyed; but with the handful of men the place could not have been held.

The detachment had only two or three hours' rest out of twenty-four, riding night and day, and renewing their horses wherever they could find fresh ones. They were thus remounted several times throughout the command, and brought home better horses than they started with. It is said that most of the regular cavalry was massed with Stoneman and Wyndham at Columbia, and that the volunteers did most of the work between Richmond and Fredericksburgh.

The slaves everywhere hailed the expedition with delight. Near Aylett's, a field full of slave women hoeing corn, threw their hoes in the air, and shouting "Glory to God!" "The Lord deliver us!" and singing ecstatic Methodist hymns, followed the old flag. When the expedition arrived at Gloucester, in the language of Capt. Armstrong, "The ground was black with negroes."

Lieut. Estis, with ten men, detached at Aylett's to dash across the country northward, and, if possible, convey Gen. Hooker news of the destruction of the communications, made a bold ride and struck the Rappahannock at Tappahannock Court House, but found the river too much swollen to cross. Here they surprised, captured and paroled, a rebel lieutenant and fifteen men. Being obliged to tarry here a short time, four hundred Essex County militia assembled under Gen. Muse, and approached the lower ford, where the Union squad was waiting. When at a short distance, Gen. M. sent a flag of truce to Estis, with a note informing him that he (Gen. M.) had sufficient force to capture them, and advised, to prevent the effusion of blood, that he surrender the Union forces at Bowler's Ferry. Lieut. E. refused, mounted and spurred rapidly down the river. During the flight they caught a rebel major, two captains and three privates, going to join their regiments, and paroled them. Gen. Muse and his militia, three hundred strong, followed closely, and soon the brave handful found themselves caught in a cul de sac between the swollen river and the great Dragon swamp. They refused again to surrender, abandoned their horses, destroyed thier arms, and took to the swamp. Here military pursuit was abandoned, but the planters turned out and actually hunted them with bloodhounds the next morning. On Wednesday last, all were captured, some wounded by the dogs. A detachment was immediately sent with them toward Richmond, but on the Mattapony they were met by our Cameron Dragoons, and the captors and captured instantly changed places. Estis wheeled about and escorted his escort to Gloucester.

IMPORTANT FROM THE SOUTHWEST

Gen. Grant Said to be Investing Jackson, Mississippi.

The Vicksburgh Communications in his Possession.

The Rebels Forced to Come Out and Fight or Starve.

Cairo, Monday, May 11.

The Memphis Bulletin says:

"We learn that Jackson is already invested, and that the rebels have no way of getting out of Vicksburgh but by cutting their way through the National forces.

It was the pontoon bridge over the Big Black River that was destroyed, instead of the railroad bridge.

The steamer Horizon, during the engagement at Grand Gulf, ran on a snag and sunk with 100,000 rations. Most of the rations were lost."

[Jackson is the capital of the State of Mississippi. It is situated on the west bank of the Pearl River, which is navigable to that point. It is built on a level plain, and extends over a surface of half a mile square, regularly laid out, and a quarter of a mile from the river. It is forty-five miles east of Vicksburgh, and the railroad running eastward from that stronghold passes through it. The New-Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern railroad also passes through it. If the above dispatch is correct, Gen. Grant thus has command of all the rebel communications.—Ed. Times.]

OPERATIONS ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

Our Correspondence from the Gunboat Fleet.

Running the Vicksburgh Blockade—The Number of Gunboats and Transports Below Vicksburgh—Plantations Deserted—A Reconnoissance.

Looking at Grand Gulf, Mississippi River, Monday, April 27, 1863.

We get but few newspapers in these parts, and are, of course, in blissful ignorance of the grand victories which our forces have achieved at Charleston and other places. We also have a conceited notion that the eyes of the whole country are turned upon us here in "the great Valley of the Mississippi." If such be the case, they will require good spectacles to discern what we are doing just now. The last remark is put in as a saving clause.

Without attempting to peer into the future, or to inquire concerning what does not belong to vulgar minds, we refer to what is past. Of this we know something.

One of the great historical events of the war will, no doubt, be the successful running of the rebel batteries by a whole fleet of our gunboats, on the night of April 16, 1863. That incident, however, was but the precursor of another similar achievement by our transport fleet. On Wednesday night five out of six steamers, intended for troop transports, successfully passed the Vicksburgh batteries, encountering the concentrated fire of a hundred guns, yet sustaining no serious damage, and only one being sunk. The unlucky steamer was the Tigress, the only side-wheel vessel in the fleet. Not a life was lost, so far as I can learn. For two mortal hours, and longer, did the rebels pour their venomous, plunging fire of shot and shell upon the devoted steamers; but they went through it all, as if bearing a charmed life.

Watching the continous flash of the rebel guns, and counting their deep and murderous bass at a distance of twenty odd miles from the scene, it seemed impossible for any floating object to escape annihilation under such a fire. The blood chilled, and the heart almost stopped beating, while the imagination painted the awful havoc of life which seemed inevitable under such a shower of destructive missiles. Imagine our surprise—nay, our astonishment—when we learned, a few hours later, that so little damage was done to the brave Union flotilla.

If there is anything in the history of warfare to compare with these two events, I am unacquainted with it.

And, now, going back to the events preceding so immediately the running of the rebel blockade—to the vaunting of the enemy as to the invulnerability of his batteries; to the bouquet of Gen. Pemberton, and his invitation to Gen. Shernan to come down and examine his batteries, with the assurance that "the more he saw of them the less he would like them." How must the conceit be taken out of him? Who can measure the chagrin? How shall we take the dimensions of that collapsed balloon at Vicksburgh? Not the least of their mortification and disgust must come from the reflection of having wasted so much precious ammunition. Probably the powder, shell and shot expended for the purpose of destroying our gunboats and transports on these occasions, cost the rebel Government $10,000, at the very lowest estimate.

We now have seven transports and eight first-class gunboats below Vicksburgh, affording facilities for transporting our troops rapidly to any desired point, with the power to cover their landing with the requisite number of guns of heavy calibre. This change in our base of operations throws open the whole rebel line of operations to our attack, which had hitherto been deemed impregnable. We can strike at any one of half-a-dozen important points, selecting our own time and mode of doing it. The only fear seems to be we shall select too much time to do anything which may prove fatal to the mode. We rest too long upon our laurels.

Under instructions from Washington, I learn that the gunboats are hereafter to coöperate with the army in whatever movements are undertaken. If a good understanding can be secured between the commanders, and this programme carried out, we shall, doubtless, witness results of the most satisfactory character before long.

Keeping in view the supreme interests of the public service, it would be highly improper for me to foreshadow plans. N. B.—In this particular case the public interests are safe, for I know nothing to reveal. All I know is, we—the gunboat fleet—have been lying looking at Grand Gulf since the 22d of April. We have thrown a dozen or two of our shells at the working party who are busy day and night, apparently perfecting their works. When we fire they hide. When we cease they work, and the black sentry resumes his beat.

The gunboat fleet left Carthage on Wednesday morning, the 22d inst., the Admiral leading the way on the Benton. We took no troops. I will not state why, though it is supposed there were none to take—a pretty good reason. Being at Carthage, I was invited to go down, and availed myself of the opportunity to see the doings.

The plantations along the river for the twenty-five miles traveled seemed deserted, like every other part of the river—except by the blacks, who, young and old, male and female, peered out of the doors of their quarters, or ran to the bank to see the strange procession as it passed. It a is remarkable fact that they did not seem in the least alarmed, but on the contrary appeared interested in the sight. Probably they have no cotton to fall into Yankee hands. Our lugubrious white man nervously walks the piazza of his otherwise deserted house. It was the only specimen of white humanity to be seen. The fleet came in sight of Grand Gulf shortly after noon, and ran down to within range as if intending to make an attack. Perhaps the object was to draw the rebel fire, and thus ascertain their location, strength and range. If so, the object failed. Our gunboats didn't fire and so did they. The Admiral turned his head up stream and signaled the fleet to follow. At a distance of three or four miles the vessels rounded to, and the Admiral issued his orders for the day.

The Lafayette was designated as the ship to make the attack, in order to draw the fire of the rebel batteries. The Admiral, with the Commanders of the different gunboats, repaired on board the Lafayette and she was dropped down to within easy rifle-range of the bluff. Meantime a small steamboat, the Charon, had just run in and made a landing and was putting out. A long shell from the 100-pound Parrot was dropped near her, which had a perceptible influence upon the motion of her paddle-wheels. A second was fired at her without doing any damage—the shell not exploding. The Charon, which evidently led a somewhat charmed existence, disappearing in the labrynths of the Big Black.

The Lafayette fired some twelve or fifteen shells and shot at the lower line of works, where guns could be distincly seen mounted en barbette. The rebel flag floated from a staff upon a large mound directly at the foot of the bluff, which had the appearance of a magazine. A party of soldiers and contrabands—principally the latter—were at work apparently mounting guns inside the intrenchments, which extended along the entire river front, from left to right several hundred yards. The works, however, only appeared complete for a space of about one hundred and fifty yards. A line of rifle-pits lay back of the ramparts as far as could be seen, the opposite (Coffee) point concealing the full extent of the fortifications.

The Admiral stood on the spar-deck directing the firing. Only one battery—apparently a 30-pound Parrott—replied to the shell and solid shot from the Lafayette. They responded eight times, their shells being good line shots, but mostly falling short and exploding in the water. They came from a battery on the hill nearly half a mile down the river. One shot passed over the Lafayette, striking some distance beyond in the water.

The vessels then withdrew, and anchored out of range for the night. Thus ended the first lesson.

Thursday morning the flagship Benton, with the Tuscumbia, proceeded up the river, and the day was spent in uncertainty as to what was the next move. The boats lay all day observing the working party at the Point, and waiting in expectation of hearing from above. Toward evening the General Price appeared, with Maj.-Gen. McClernand, Brig.-Gen. Osterhaus, and other officers, accompanied by several of "our special artists," who came down for the evident purpose of reconnoitering the position, and taking notes and sketches. They dropped down, fired three or four 9-inch shells at the rebel works, and then returned whence they came. The gunboat Louisville also made some excellent shots with her 30-pound Parrott, the missiles striking the bank, or going very near the mark. The working party left, and sullenly withdrew to a safer position. The rebel sentry also vamosed. Thus ended the second day.

On Friday the Admiral came down on board the General Price, accompanied by Gen. McClernand, and fired one shell at the rebels from her stern nine-inch gun. The Lafayette also opened her Parrotts again, and sent several shots and shells into the rebel fortifications. The Pittsburgh and Mound City also fired several shots, and then withdrew for the night. The General Price withdrew up the river, and thus ended the three days' dessultory firing at Grand Gulf. Result—"nobody hurt."

To-day, nothing strange has happened to relieve the monotony of this hot and dull exile, except the appearance of two persons, dressed as citizens, in a skiff, rowed by "ye intelligent contraband." The men had a pass from Admiral Porter to go down the river. They were sent to Capt. Walke, on board the Lafayette, who strictly examined them, and then allowed them to proceed. One of this party is a notorious rebel in these parts, who has burned his cotton crop for two years past. Report also says he holds a high commission in the rebel army, though I do not vouch for the truth of that statement. The other, a Mr. Moore, is a large planter living near by. The black man, on being questioned, stated that the last flour sold at Grand Gulf brought $60 per barrel. Corn was $1 per bushel, the price being fixed by Government. Salt was an article once mentioned in history, but they had not seen any so long they had almost forgotten its use. The last coffee brought to the country sold for six bits a pound, three months ago. There was little or no bacon, and only a few hogs left "around." He had seen three different steamboats arrive and depart at Grand Gulf, and as late as last Tuesday, two steamboat loads of troops were landed there from up the Mississippi. He had heard the number of troops given at two thousand. The number of guns reported to be there was eighty, (probably exaggerated.)

The rebel guns at Grand Gulf command the entrance to the Big Black River. As the rebels have had hints of our intentions, it would be strange if they had not already a large force of troops congregated at Grand Gulf for the protection of the place. They can easily be sent down the Big Black by steamboats and flats, and landed within marching distance of the place.

Battle at Port Gibson—Floyd in Command at Grand Gulf.

Disharvon's Plantation, Near Grand Gulf, Miss., Saturday, May 2, 1863.

The forces of Gen. Grant encountered some 10,000 of the enemy, yesterday morning, on his march toward Port Gibson, and had an engagement, lasting some two hours and a half. The enemy fell back, fighting. Their best battery, probably belonging to Bowen's brigade, the Sixth Missouri, fell into our hands, with 400 prisoners, who were sent to the rear.

The prisoners are at Bruensburgh, under guard. Our forces are now in the rear of Grand Gulf, and will probably occupy it to-day. Yesterday, wagons were observed hauling away something—probably ammunition—from Grand Gulf. It is no longer of any use to the rebels. Thus, another of the strongholds on the Mississippi is ours, unless we are greatly mistaken;—great men are liable to be, sometimes.

Brig.-Gen. Bowen, who was in command at Grand Gulf, has just been relieved of the command of that post by Gen. Floyd. This accounts for the stealing away of the ammunition, yesterday.

The rebels had their Colonel (Wade) and his Aid killed, besides several other officers and men, during the attack upon them on Wednesday; also a large number killed and wounded in the infantry. We dismounted several of their guns. A rebel mail, from Grand Bluff, captured by Gen. Grant, admits heavy losses at that place, and that we silenced their batteries.

The gunboat fleet received a large flat of coals this morning. The Tuscumbia is being repaired for active service. Those not seriously wounded on our side are doing well. We shall send you decisive news from this quarter very soon. DE SOTO.

LATEST NEWS VIA LONDONDERRY.

London, Friday, May 1.

The London Times' "City Article" says:

"Notwithstanding the additional reports from New-York of violent instructions being sent from Mr. Seward to Mr. Adams, it is believed that nothing of the kind is intended to be presented to our Government. The reports were probably encouraged solely with the view to mitigate the difficulties of the approaching conscription. With the present feeling of the British public, which recently found expression in Parliament, it would be highly dangerous for the Washington Government to place matters in such a position as might render a continued exercise of forbearance impossible on the part of the British Government. It is stated that the detention by the Federals on board of the Peterhoff of two members of the firm of Galbraith, Redgate & Co. having been brought to the notice of Earl Russell, His Lordship has directed a reply to be sent them, announcing that Lord Lyons will be instructed to state to the Government of the United States, that the British Government considers that full reparation is due for the losses sustained by the detention of their agents, and to Mr. Redgate for the injury done them and him by protracted imprisonment at New-York.

The Ministers have announced that the Peterhoff's mails will be forwarded to their destination unopened, and that the same course will be pursued in similar cases."

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Excitement Among the "Fancy."

A PRIZE FIGHT PREVENTED BY THE INTERFERENCE OF THE POLICE.

At a late hour on Saturday afternoon last, quite a number of the "fancy men" of this City receivdd a notice to the effect that on Monday morning, (yesterday,) about daylight, a prize fight would take place between JAMES ELLIOTT and JAMES DUNN, at Camp Scott, Staten Island. The stakes were $1,200 a side. A large number of the sporting men of this City went down to Staten Island by the last boat on Saturday night. All day on Sunday large crowds of those immediately interested in the fight, availed themselves of the chances of a leisure day and repaired to the place, where it was supposed the battle would take place. The parties most interested did everything they could to prevent the Metropolitan Police from learning the time and place of the fight. The Dunn party went down, on Saturday night last, and were safely rendezvoused in the vicinity of Camp Scott; but Elliot's party did not undertake to leave the City until a late hour on Sunday night. The Metropolitan Police had, in the meantime, received notice of the intended fight, and orders were immediately issued by the Superintendent to the Captain of the Harbor Police Boat, to arrest all persons who endeavored to leave the City in a certain boat, which it was supposed would leave the Battery some time during the night. Police Boat No. 1 was accordingly manned, and every preparation was made to overhaul the suspected craft. About 2 or 3 o'clock on Sunday morning, a sloop was seen to pass down the North River, past the Battery and as it answered the description of the suspected craft, the Police-boat, which had steam up for several hours, gave chase, and in a short time overhauled the former. It proved to be the boat containing the Elliott party. When the Metropolitan boat first hailed the other, no answer was given; a second hail and the Elliott boat reponded, "Don't mind the Metropolitans, but crowd on the sails." The Captain of the Police-boat then said, "Unless you come to and surrender, I shall at once fire upon you." This threat had the desired effect. The Elliott boat took in sail, and the Police steamer took her in tow, and brought her back to the City, with all on board. On the captured boat, there were about four hundred of the friends of ELLIOTT, their champion. Some fifteen hundred or two thousand disappointed men—most of them the friends and backers of DUNN—after waiting at different places on the east shore of Staten Island until 8 or 9 o'clock yesterday morning, were compelled to wend their way back to the City, much disappointed at the idea of not having witnessed the "fun," and all the time venting curses loud and deep against the Police for the part they performed in the matter. The leaders in the fight say that it will come off at an early day, at some place beyond the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan Police.

Power of the City Judge to Grant Insolvent Discharges—Is a Gum Ticket Without any Impression a Seal within the Meaning of the Statute?

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Sutherland, Clerke and Barnard.

The People on the Relation of the Pacific Mutual Insurance Company vs. John A. Machado.—This case came up on certiorari, to review the proceedings taken before John H. McCunn, Esq., the City Judge, whereby the defendant was discharged under the act "of voluntary assignment by an insolvent debtor, for the purpose of exonerating his person from imprisonment."

It was agreed on the part of the relators that the City Judge has not power to grant insolvent discharges. That the claim on the part of the defendant, that the City Judge has the same powers as the Recorder in such cases, is not valid; and further, that even if it were, the Recorder himself has not this power. That even if the City Judge had the general jurisdiction to grant discharges he had none in this case, because the affidavit of the insolvent does not appear to have been subscribed before the Judge. That there was no proof that the defendant resided or was imprisoned in the county where the City Judge resided. That the inventory of the debtor's property was insufficient; and that it nowhere appeared that he was insolvent. That if the City Judge acquired jurisdiction, his subsequent proceedings were erroneous, no sufficient order for the creditors to show cause having been made. That the notice to creditors published was insufficient; the order for an assignment erroneous, and the assignment itself insufficient, as it had no seal; the gum ticket purporting to be a seal, being without impression; and, furthermore, that the discharge itself was defective on its face.

The argument on the part of the defendant was chiefly confined to the contravention of the points raised by the relators. Decision reserved.

John N. Lewis and David Dudley Field for relators; John B. Fegerty and A. J. Vanderpoel for Machado.

Which was laid over.

By the President—

Whereas, The mournful intelligence of the decease of John Hogan, late a member of the Board of Councilmen, has been announced, the melancholy event having occurred on Friday last, the eighth instant; and

Whereas, The many virtues possessed and exercised by the deceased won for him the highest respect of his numerous friends, and endeared him especially to his associates in the Common Council of one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, in which he wielded a large influence; and

Whereas, It is but fitting that the Common Council of one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three (some of the members of which were the associates of the deceased while in office,) should give proper expression to their feelings in view of their painful and sudden loss; therefore be it

Resolved, That this Common Council has heard with deep regret of the decease of their late associate, John Hogan, whose virtues had endeared him to many hearts, and while thus giving feeble expression to their own sorrow, would tender to the family and friends of deceased that sympathy of which they stand so much in need.

Resolved, That, as a mark of respect to the memory of deceased, the Common Council will attend his funeral in a body, on Sunday, tenth instant, at one o'clock P. M.

Resolved, That a committee of three members from each Board be appointed to take charge of and make the necessary arrangements for the funeral of deceased.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions be suitably engrossed and forwarded to the family of deceased.

Which was adopted.

And the same was directed to be sent to the Board of Aldermen for concurrence.

Subsequently the President named Councilmen Hayes Brice and Webster, the Committee on the part of the Board of Councilmen contemplated in the resolution.

Councilman Brice moved that, as a further mark of respect to the memory of deceased, the Board do now adjourn.

Which was carried.

Whereupon the President declared that the Board stand adjourned until Monday, the eleventh instant, at five o'clock P. M.

The Bank return this afternoon shows an accumulation of Gold Coin of $1,156,000 over last Monday. The improved demand for Money from the Stock Exchange has again increased the line of Loans and Discounts, to the extent on the present statement, of $2,750,000; making nine millions for the fortnight; while the diversion of Deposits and Country Bank balances into the 5-20 year 6 ₩ cent. Stock of the United States, has partially decreased the general line of deposits. The demand for Money is again active to-day from the Brokers of the Stock Exchange, but it appeared to be answered with more ease than on Friday or Saturday, at 6 and 7 ₩ cent. The price of Gold Coin has fallen 1¼ ₩ cent. Sales at the early Board, and also in the afternoon at 148¾ ₩ cent., and Exchange on London for the Boston mail is down to 163@164 ₩ cent. The subscriptions to the 5-20 year stock of 1882 through the Loan Agents, amount to $1,150,000, and at the Treasury direct to $226,500; together, $1,376,500. There was also a good demand for the Loan of 1881, at the Stock Exchange, at 107¾ ₩ cent. Treasury paper again firm, and a large business was also done in Railway mortgages.

The speculative temper on the Railway Share list was even higher than on Saturday, notwithstanding some very heavy realizing on several descriptions, which had recently gone up 5@10 ₩ cent. At the First Board the registered business is equal to 55,000 Shares, and the whole business of the day is not short of one hundred thousand Shares! Compared with the last prices of Saturday the best sales of the day show an advance of 5 ₩ cent. on Michigan Southern; 3 ₩ cent. on Cleveland and Pittsburgh; 2 ₩ cent. on Erie; 3 ₩ cent. on Fort Wayne and the same on Prairie du Chien. The advance of Saturday on other descriptions was maintained, and upon large offerings for realization. The Coal Stocks are all higher, including Philadelphia and Reading, which sold at 101¾@102 ₩ cent., the highest figure for the Stock known for 15 years. The transactions in Michigan Southern were the marked feature of the day's business from the rapidity of the advance.

At 4 o'clock there was some abatement from extreme prices on part of the Railway Share list, though speculation continued active. The following prices were made as compared with Saturday night:

IN THE YEAR 1845, MR. MATHEWS first prepared THE VENETIAN HAIR DYE; since that time it has been used by thousands, and in no instance has it failed to give perfect satisfaction.

THE VENETIAN DYE is the cheapest in the world. Its price is ONLY FIFTY CENTS, and each bottle contains double the quantity of dye in those usually sold for $1.

THE VENETIAN DYE is warranted not to injure the hair or the scalp in the slightest degree.

THE VENETIAN DYE works with rapidity and certainty, the hair requiring no preparation whatever.

THE VENETIAN DYE produces any shade that may be desired—one that will not fade, crock nor wash out; one that is as permanent as the hair itself. For sale by all druggists. A. I. MATHEWS, General Agent, No. 10 Cedar-st., New-York.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

We have no later intelligence from the Army of the Potomac this morning. We have, however, from various sources, a reiteration of the statement made in yesterday's TIMES, that Gen. HOOKER is again across the Rappahannock. It is believed by some that the rebels have fallen back from the line of the river, and that the movement of Gen. HOOKER is a pursuit of a retreating foe. The enemy are said to have left large numbers of their killed and wounded on the field of Chancellorsville. This statement is borne out in part by the announcement, in the Richmond Examiner of the 7th inst., that, in consequence of active operations and limited transportation, the wounded on the field and at Guinea Depot were suffering for food. We also have, from a Richmond paper of the 9th, a list of National officers who fell into the hands of the rebels, and who are now prisoners in Richmond.

The Evening Post learns by special advices from Washington that Gen. HALLECK is about to take the field in person; not, it is understood, with the purpose of relieving Gen. HOOKER from his command, but that he may be in the very presence of transpiring events, and the better able to influence their general direction. "It is a significant fact," says the Post, "and one that will increase the confidence of the country in Gen. HOOKER, that he did not execute his late retrograde movement until he had planned his present one, and had become satisfied of its superiority to any effort he could make in the field of Chancellorsville, contracted as it had been by the unfortunate defection of the Eleventh corps at the commencement of the struggle."

We have this morning Col. KILPATRICK's official report of the part taken by the detachment under his immediate command in the great cavalry raid on LEE's communications. The main facts have already been stated.

A dispatch from Cairo, on the authority of the Memphis Bulletin, states that Gen. GRANT's forces at last accounts had invested Jackson, the capital of Mississippi, forty-five miles in the rear of Vicksburgh, and at the crossing of the railroads leading north, south, east and west. The rebels thus have no way of getting out of Vicksburgh except by cutting their way through our forces, and their communications are so effectually destroyed that no subsistence can reach them.

A letter dated at Clarksburgh, Va., May 8, states that scouts from Weston and Buckhannon report that the rebel infantry, with seven pieces of artillery, have left the former place and are now supposed to be passing out into the Greenbrier country through Sutton. A rebel cavalry force, 3,500 strong, were said to be occupying Harrisville, in Ritchie County.

FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Bohemian arrived off Cape Race yesterday morning, having left Liverpool on the 30th ult., and Londonderry on the 1st inst, and the City of Washington arrived at this port this morning. Her advices are five days later, though not specially important. It was reported that Mr. ADAMS had made an explanation regarding his letter of protection covering supplies for the Mexican Government, and that no diplomatic protest was necessary; but it is further stated that the French Government has taken offence, and has demanded an explanation. The London Times, in its issue of May 1, announces that Lord LYONS has been instructed to state to the Government of the United States that the British Government considers full reparation due for the losses sustained by the detention of British subjects on board the Peterhoff, and their imprisonment in New-York. The Times further states that the Ministers have announced that the Peterhoff's mails will be forwarded to their destination unopened, and that the same course will be pursued in similar cases. Polish affairs were unchanged. Some diplomatic correspondence relating to the Polish question had been published, but it was unimportant. The Liverpool cotton market was dull, and prices were generally lower. Breadstuffs were steady, but quiet, and provisions inactive. The latest quotation of consuls is 93⅜@93½ for money.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Fourth New-York Volunteer regiment (Scott Life Guard,) which arrived in this city Sunday from the army, were yesterday honored with a municipal and military ovation. The old Scott Life Guard received back its colors deposited in the City Hall when it left for the war two years ago. The column was reviewed by the Mayor and members of the Common Council in the City Hall Park, and by Gen. SCOTT at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. The Fourth was entertained with a banquet in the evening.

Neither Board of the Common Council had a quorum at their meetings yesterday afternoon, most of the members being engaged in the reception to the Scott Life Guard at the hour of meeting. The Board of Aldermen will hold a special meeting at 12 M. to-day. The Board of Councilmen stands adjourned to 5 P. M. on Thursday.

The Street-cleaning Committees of the Common Council, consisting of Aldermen LONG McCOAL and CHIPP, and Councilmen SANDFORD, BRANDON and McGRATH, met jointly at 2 o'clock P. M. yesterday, to consider what steps ought to be taken in reference to the Hackley contract, in view of the reported complaints of the City Inspector, that the contract is only imperfectly carried out. After discussing the subject fully a resolution was adopted instructing the Chairman, Col. LONG, to send a communication to the Corporation Counsel requesting his opinion as to the feasibility of abrogating the contract, and how the abrogation may be effected, and also as to whether the Common Council have the right now to order the City Inspector to take the work of street-cleaning back into his own charge and control. The Committee adjourned to meet at 11 o'clock A. M. to-day, when Col. LONG hopes to be able to present the opinion of the Corporation Counsel.

The American Seamen's Friend Society held its Thirty-fifth Anniversary, in Irving Hall, last night. A report was read, and addresses were made by Prof. HITCHCOCK and by Rev. Messrs. H. S. GULICK, P. BOUGHTON and J. T. DURYEA. Eight Trustees were elected.

The total number of deaths in this City, during the last week was 422, an increase of 9 over the deaths in the corresponding week last year, and a decrease of 13 from those of the week previous. The principal causes of death were: infantile convulsions, 27; diphtheria, 13; scarlet fever, 16; typhoid fever, 10; inflammation of the lungs, 29; disease of brain, 13; consumption, 77; old age, 4; inflammation of brain, 14; croup, 10.

From the St. Louis papers we learn that Rev. Mr. SAWYER, Superintendent of Contrabands in Missouri, has collected several carloads of negroes, who are to be shipped to St. Paul, to be employed as teamsters in Gen. POPE's expedition to the plains.

A comet was discovered in the Constellation Draco, by Mr. THOMAS SIMS, of Dudley Observatory, Albany, on the night of May 9.

The price of Gold fell 1¼ ℔ cent. yesterday sales at 148¾ ℔ cent. Exchange 163@164 on London. The demand for United States Stock with the Loan Agents amounted to $1,376,500. The Railway Share list was buoyant, on sales of nearly 100,000 shares.

Light transactions were reported in Breadstuffs and Provisions yesterday, prices, in most instances, were a shade easier. Groceries and Whisky were inactive. Cotton was dull and unsettled. Most other branches of trade were spiritless.

The cattle markets are rather scantily supplied with animals this week, the number reported at Forty-fourth-street, amounting to only 3,350 up to Monday night, and not over 100 additional bullocks are looked for. The market was lively at 11c.@12½c. for fair to prime animals, the average of all kinds being fully 11c., or ½c. above the rates of last week. Very common cattle brought 10c. Only a few small lots were left unsold at night, and the prospect for Tuesday buyers is not encouraging.

The Morale at Home and in the Army.

How is it—must a human creature smell powder to become a man? Is there indeed such virtue in "villainous saltpetre?" Surely there must be something strange to account for the strange difference between the manly spirit of the soldiers and the unmanly spirit of civilians. All accounts agree that the troops on the Rappahannock came out of their late bloody fight game to the backbone. Their submission in retreating was as steady and heroic as was their courage in advancing. It did not take from them one jot of confidence, either in themselves or their leader. But the news of the retreat no sooner came to the people, than thousands of them began to curse, and other thousands to whimper and whine. HOOKER was denounced as a braggart, a blunderhead and a humbug; and the cause itself was besniveled and bemoaned as sacrificed, ruined and lost. We do not say these feelings were universal. They were not—far from it. There were men whose hearts were firmer set, and whose faces were more like flint that day than ever. But that the general feeling was despondent, the public pulse low, was shown beyond all doubt by that unerring index, the price of gold, which, under the news, went from seven to nine per cent. higher than it was before, or is now.

It is certainly extraordinary. The soldiers, fresh from all the horrors of the battle-field, with ranks decimated, and almost exhausted with exposure and fatigue, yet undaunted and erect, composed and ready to turn on the instant and follow their leaders back into the fray: civilians hundreds of miles away, not a hair of whose head has been injured, nor a fibre subjected to discomfort, yet raving like lunatics or wilting and pining like sick girls. It will not do to say that this comes from any superior capacity for thought or freedom of thought in the civilian. The officers and soldiers in that Army of the Potomac are men, to say the least, of as much intelligence, of as much ability to comprehend the real situation, as the average of men in this City, and they do their thinking quite as originally and quite as freely. The difference is not in mind.

The difference is in heart. It is a moral result only. It comes from the development of manhood through the bracing and ennobling influences of personal military service in the cause of the country. A soldier's life is one constant subjection of all the wilder impulses to the performance of duty. It is a constant appeal and stimulus to undying devotion to the flag, doubly glorified by every new victory, doubly hallowed by every new baptism of blood. By its hardy discipline it toughens the will as well as the muscle, gives steadiness to the temper as well as to the step. By the suffering it involves, it infuses patience and fortitude; while by the grand achievement it promises, if all its duties are complied with, it keeps the soul aglow with hope and enthusiasm. There is no such school for the development of moral stamina, for the cultivation of all the higher qualities of manhood, as an army in active service.

This is not the first time that we have had occasion to note the superior staunchness of our brothers and sons under arms. It has, in fact, long ago, become notorious. The ringing appeals and remonstrances that came up last Winter from all the camps from Port Royal to the Western borders of Arkansas, against the peace movements of Northern politicians, still echo in the public ear. They probably had more influence than all other things combined to lay the traitorous spirit which was fast becoming rampant and uncontrollable. The single-heartedness, the firmness, and the intensity of the patriotism of the soldiers have been displayed more and more preëminently as the war has advanced; and it is hard to say for which of the two the army is now most valuable—its physical prowess against the Southern rebels, or its moral influence over the Northern malignants and despondents. We are beginning to appreciate better than ever before what NAPOLEON meant in saying that "The conscription is the everlasting root of a nation, its moral purification, the real foundation of its habits." This Republic surely needs it, irrespective of any danger of rebel success. Were the President to-morrow to issue a proclamation for a forced levy of a million of men, to be drilled and trained, and to be transferred to the field to serve to the close of the war, we believe the measure would be invaluable for its effects in dissipating the canker of a long peace, and raising the nation to the old Roman pitch of public devotion. It would soon bring to an end the corruption which has so largely tainted every element of our political affairs; while, in a military sense, it would put this generation of Americans in a condition to defy the world in arms.

A conscription to that extent will not be made; possibly, indeed, no conscription whatever. But it is a shame if civilians have not any resources of their own, whereby to give character and steadiness to public spirit. If Loyal Leagues were multiplied, and the right use made of them, we believe that they would be very serviceable in this regard. All associated effort, even though it does not take the form of embodied military force, is susceptible to that subtle, yet very potent, influence, known as esprit de corps. Men everywhere are stronger when they stand shoulder to shoulder. There ought to be a public sentiment created here, somehow, that should make such manifestations of maliciousness and weakness as followed the late check of Gen. HOOKER a moral impossibility. If we cannot rise to the glorious level of the soldiers, in high devotion and steady faith, we ought, at least, to try heartily to come a little nearer to it. We are, indeed, far gone, if lost to the influence of their splendid and constant example.

The Mississippi Valley—Almost Redeemed.

The gratifying progress that Gen. GRANT is making in circumventing the rebel army in Mississippi is one of the most hopeful features of the war. The West is not divided into many separate topographical systems, each independent of the other, as is the case with the Atlantic Seaboard States. The New-England harbors might be blockaded by an enemy, and New-York not feel it. New-York harbor might be closed, and yet the States conduct a foreign commerce without limit. It is different in the West. The Mississippi Valley is a grand unit, and a blockade of its great river at a single point, as at Vicksburgh, acts as a paralysis on commerce throughout its whole vast extent—from Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico. It is easy to comprehend, therefore, what an inspiriting and vitalizing effect will be produced on the loyal millions of the Mississippi Valley by the success of Gen. GRANT in removing the rebel blockade from the Mississippi River.

For two long years the people of the West have been deprived of the use of their grand natural highway to the markets of the world. They have thus been doubly sufferers from the war. They have lost the rewards of industry in their ordinary fields of labor, without having received those compensations from Government employment which has so much relieved the population in other sections of the Union devoted to manufacturing.

It is to the honor of the people of the West that their loyalty has been so clear and hearty, notwithstanding the unequal operation of the war upon their interests. And because they have been loyal, zealous and brave, illustrating their patriotism on every battle-field where they have appeared, the Government has long felt that it was due to the West to restore its commerce, at any cost of money, life and effort. The persistent siege of Vicksburgh, conducted by a Western General, supported by a powerful army of Western men, is an earnest of the sincerity with which this duty has been performed. And the success that seems at last to be crowning the labors of Gen. GRANT will be hailed with equal joy in the East and in the West.

As the Mississippi Valley is a unit in its topographical system, embracing the extreme northern as well as the extreme southern latitudes of the Union in its scope; and as the blockade of its great river has practically sundered the Union in the West, so will the expulsion of the rebels from Vicksburgh and Port Hudson, practically reunite the upper and lower Valleys of the Mississippi River, thus obliterating the lines of separation and disunion that the Secessionists had drawn and hoped to make eternal. Once give the Union gunboats complete control of the Mississipppi River, and the rebellion will be more than one-half exterminated. Neither Confederate power, nor any other hostile power, domestic or foreign, will ever be able to recover possession of any portion of that river or its valley, or prevent the reconstruction on its banks of that Union whose foresight purchased it, whose energy peopled it, whose arms defended it, and whose free principles, under the blessing of Heaven, will find there a home for future centuries. It will animate the West with a new and noble zeal to find they have pushed the legitimate power of the Government through to the Gulf, and thus recovered their own natural and constitutional rights. And in the midst of this joy they will be more ready to offer new armies to the Republic.

ONE-SIDED NEUTRALITY.—The Courrier des Etats Unis fails to point out a word or syllable in the letter of Mr. ADAMS which indicates the slightest suspicion on his part that the cargo of the British vessel whose neutral character he certified consisted of arms, or was contraband of war. That journal, nevertheless, persists in its assertion that he must have known it, because he is too acute and too sagacious a man to be deceived in such a matter. We beg to ask the Courrier what evidence it has even now that the vessel carried arms and munitions? We have seen nothing more conclusive on this point than some unsupported statements of the London Times, repeated by Secessionists in the House of Commons. If the Courrier has any better authority, we should be glad to know it. But it has failed at any rate to show that Mr. ADAMS had any reason for suspecting that he was doing anything more than certifying to the bona fide neutrality of a British vessel seeking a market for British goods in a Mexican port. The Courrier thinks it quite right for the British to send arms to the Mexicans for the express purpose of fighting the French. This is certainly a curious mode of defending the rights and interests of France, though it is a matter with which we have no concern.

THE PORT GIBSON AFFAIR.—The statement in the brief dispatch of Gen. GRANT, concerning the fight on the 1st of May near Port Gibson, Miss., that he found and fought there a garrison of eleven thousand men, seemed almost incredible, as Port Gibson was a place of which little had been heard, and it was not known that the rebels had a single man there, nor could it be supposed that they had such large bodies of troops scattered here and there over the Mississippi Valley. But the fact is that these eleven thousand men were part of the rebel army defending Vicksburgh, which had been marched hastily down to Port Gibson to oppose the landing of GRANT's land force on the east bank of the Mississippi River. We published a letter yesterday, written from a point on the west side of the Mississippi, nearly opposite to where the battle was subsequently fought, in which our correspondent asserted that he could see the rebel regiments filing down the east bank of the river from the direction of Vicksburgh. In defeating and routing these eleven thousand men, Gen. GRANT has diminished by just so much the labor he will have to do when he moves immediately upon the enemy's works at Vicksburgh.

ROSECRANS.—Gen. ROSECRANS can hardly hold still in Tennessee, while Gen. HOOKER in the East, and Gens. BANKS and GRANT in the Southwest, are setting him examples of so much effort and energy. Now is the time to press upon the rebels. "Charge along the whole line," and give the enemy so much to do that they will not know how to do it. We have failed heretofore for lack of combination in the movements of our armies. This can be remedied now, for every army is capable of being moved at once.

We are glad to see that Gen. ROSECRANS appreciates the opportune moment for assuming offensive operations. On the 8th inst. he issued from his camp an order for all females, wives of officers and soldiers, to depart from his lines, and forbade any others to come, as they would not be admitted. The reason assigned in the order is that "the season of active operations of the army" has arrived. It is not likely that the month of May will pass without bringing us news that ROSECRANS has unloosed his hardy and battle-scarred legions, and set them upon the track of BRAGG's rebel army, which they almost tore to pieces in December.

REBEL NEGRO SOLDIERS.—The naval attack on the rebel batteries at Grand Gulf, on the 28th ult., of which our correspondent yesterday furnished an account, seems to have been a very hard-fought affair. Our killed and wounded amount to seventy-six, and the damage to the gunboats was considerable. The Tuscumbia, a turreted iron-clad, was completely riddled in every portion not protected by plating. Her chimneys were perforated until they resembled huge graters, and her woodwork torn and splintered in every conceivable shape. Her turrets alone, in their thickest parts, were able to resist the projectiles hurled against her. She was finally disabled by a shot that cut one of her hog-chains, by which, in river phrase, she was "broken in two." The Lafayette proved herself the most formidable as well as invulnerable vessel of the fleet, for though struck a number of times, she was not in the slightest degree injured.

The entire number of rebel batteries in the works was ten, each of which mounted from three to five guns. The point we wish specially to signalize, however, in connection with this affair, is one mentioned by our correspondent, that the guns in this formidable series of rebel works, which caused such casualties to our sailors, and such damage to our river iron-clads, "were in the main worked by negro troops." Is it not horrible that the rebels should thus arm their slaves to slaughter white men and destroy the Union?

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—There was a poor attendance last evening when "Il Trovatore" was performed. The work seems to be out of favor with the public, except on extraordinary occasions. Last evening was not one of these. The performance lacked spirit. Signor MAZZOLENI did not seem to be in good voice, and, indeed, was unable to finish the opera—Signor SBRIGLIA assuming his rôle. Signor BELLINI sang with much power, but was, nevertheless, a little hoarse. Miss PARKER—a lady who made the acquaintance of our public some eighteen months since at a concert—was the Leonora, but failed to satisfy the audience with the performance. Miss PARKER possesses a good voice, but is destitute of the culture that should enable her to use it to advantage.

On Wednesday evening "Ione" will be given, with Mme. GUERRABELLA as the heroine.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.—This establishment reopened last evening, under the management of Mrs. JANE ENGLISH. The entertainment offered was of a varied kind; but of a sort that does not admit of criticism. Dancing on the tight rope, (very excellent by the way,) local comic songs, tableaux, comic violin solos, &c., &c., are things that we expect at a concert-room, but not at a first-class Broadway theatre. Two comic pieces after the style of the Ravels were not sufficient to redeem the entertainment from being wearisome.

CUBAS IN BROOKLYN.—The largest audience ever gathered at the Brooklyn Academy greeted CUBAS last night. A fearful aboriginal drama opened the night's entertainment, after which CUBAS and XIMINES tripped the light fantastics; following which was an admirable rendering of the "French Spy." On Saturday, CUBAS will make her second appearance in the City of Churches.

STEREOPTICON AT THE ATHENEUM.—At the Brooklyn Athenæum is advertised a stereoscopic exhibition of great interest. The views are admirably given and are worthy of patronage. The explanations are afforded by Mr. W. J. ROSE, a gentleman of great culture and experience, whose statements are based on actual observation, and are given in a novel and, what is not usual in such exhibitions, grammatical style.

HOLY LAND PANORAMA.—At Hope Chapel, Rev. WM. W. WILLIAMS is delivering a course of six lectures on the Holy Land, explanatory of a very beautiful panorama of interesting localities in Syria, Arabia, Greece and Rome.

Affairs in Western Virginia.

GRAFTON, Monday, May 11.

Heavy Union reinforcements have arrived. The rebels, under JACKSON, IMBODEN, JONES and JENKINS, are retreating toward the Sohthwest Mountains. There are now no rebels on the lines of the railroads in Western Virginia.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 11.

THE CONSCRIPTION.

Under the provisions of the Enrollment law, as construed at the War Department, the men will be in the service of the United States from the moment they are drafted. And the Department has ordered that they be put in uniform, and that they be provided with knapsacks, haversacks, canteens, tin cups, spoons, &c., as soon as they report to the Provost-Marshals. The Quartermaster-General has been ordered to fill the requisitions of the Provost-Marshal-General for the clothing and other equipments, to be delivered at whatever points the latter may designate.

RE-ENLISTMENT OF OFFICERS.

By order of the Secretary of War, officers of regiments going out of service, by reason of the expiration of their terms of service, may, with the consent of their respective Governors, reënlist their regiments within thirty days from the expiration of their original service, for a term of three years, unless sooner discharged; and upon the regiment being filled up within the thirty days aforesaid, the officers shall be restored to their rank as from the date of their original commissions. This, however, will give no claim to pay for the time between muster out and reëntry into service.

PHILADELPHIA CANARDS.

The military canards let fly on Saturday from two Philadelphia newspaper offices to New-York were certainly hatched by Munchausen. Nothing so false has been published since the war begun.

THE FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW.

A Maryland fugitive slave, who was caught, imprisoned and brought by habeas corpus before the new Supreme Court, is about to furnish the country with a solution of the vexed question of the constitutionality of the Fugitive Slave law, and its inapplicability to the District of Columbia. Judges CARTER, OLIN, FISHER and WILEY are all on the Bench. Messrs. JOLIFFE and DEAN plead for the black man's freedom; Messrs. BRADLEY and COX oppose.

REVENUE DECISIONS.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to-day, made the following decisions:

Writs of error and writs of certiorari, to remove proceedings from an inferior to a superior court, are not original processes, and do not require a stamp; nor does an appeal from a judgment or decree of an inferior to a superior court.

A paper in the form of a note, with a seal, is a bond, and requires to be stamped as such.

The Consul-General of Prussia is liable to a tax levied on a carriage and other articles specified in schedule A, section seventy-seven, of the Excise law. He has not the privileges of an Ambassador, and is entitled to no exemption except from taxes, both direct and personal, which this is not.

Amicable actions of fieri facias, whether with or without a confession of judgment, require a fifty-cent stamp, as do the original processes.

Revenue stamps of any kind, except those specially designed for proprietary articles, may be used upon instruments.

Continued and Increasing Success of the Government Bonds.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, May 11.

Mr. JAY COOKE, the Government Agent, reports the sale of $2,203,000 in Five-twenties, in the various agencies throughout the country, as follows:

New-York takes $1,250,000; Boston, $400,000; Philadelphia, $300,000; and the Western agencies have subscribed $253,000.

The delay in furnishing bonds to subscribers will not be of much longer duration. Since these unprecedented sales new plates have been engraved, and are rapidly approaching completion. The demand for small bonds will thus soon be promptly filled, and subscribers will have the satisfaction of receiving their bonds on the payment of the money. Parties holding the receipts of the agents are assured that no labor or pains are spared in hastening forward the bonds.

THE RETURNING TROOPS.

Reception of the Fourth New-York State Volunteer Regiment.

A Grand Display of Soldiers and Firemen on Broadway—The Scott Life Guard Receive Back their Colors—Speeches of Mayor Opdyke and Col. McGregor.

The Column Reviewed by Gen. Scott—A Banquet in the Evening.

The Fourth New-York Volunteer regiment, (Scott Life Guard,) which arrived in this City Sunday from the seat of war, met with an enthusiastic public reception yesterday. The programme arranged by the municipal and other authorities for the occasion was minutely observed, to the edification of multitudes of spectators. The military and firemen's display was the grandest witnessed in the City for a long period, and the honors paid to the returning regiment were from sources which cannot fail to make a deep impression upon the memories of the recipients.

As previously ordered, the Fourth regiment assembled at 1 P. M. at the Arsenal in Centre-street, and awaited the forming of the escort column, which took place on Canal-street, the right resting on Broadway, at 3 o'clock. Shortly after that hour, everything being in readiness, the line moved down Broadway in the following order:

Platoon of Policemen.
Fifth regiment, (Duryee's Zouaves.)
Col. Cleveland Winslow.
Garde Lafayette, Col Le Gal.
Thirteenth Brooklyn, N. G., Col. Woodward.
Twenty-second N. Y. S. M., Lieut.-Col. J. H. Grant.
Fourth regiment N. Y. V., Col. McGregor.
Disabled members of the Fourth regiment, in carriages.
No. 13, Jackson Hose Company.
Empire Hook and Ladder Company, Brooklyn.
Protection Engine Company, Williamsburgh.
Continental Hose Company, Williamsburgh.
Lafayette Engine Company, Williamsburgh
Victory Hose Company.

The column enters the City Hall Park by passing through the west gate and retired through the opposite entranbe. The Mayor and members of the Common Council received the pageant as it filed by. When the Fourth regiment had arrived in front of the City Hall the men halted, drawn up in line, and then formed in a hallow-square, the centre of which was occupied by the Mayor, members of the Common Council, and parties bearing the colors to be returned to the regiment. The colors, it will be recollected were presented to the old Scott Life Guard by the ladies of New-York, and when that company left for the seat of war two years ago were deposited by them in the City Hall for safe-keeping until their return. The presentation speech on behalf of the City was made by Mayor OPDYKE. He said:

MAYOR OPDYKE'S SPEECH.

COLONEL: I have the pleasure on behalf of the Municipal authorities of this City, to tender to you and the brave officers and men under your command a hearty welcome to your homes and firesides. Since you left us two years ago to go to the defence of the country, and to put down this wicked rebellion, you have participated in many scenes of trial and bloodshed in all of which you have done honor to your regiment, and reflected glory upon the city of your birth. I feel that you achieved great honor in volunteering to remain with the army after your term of service had expired, to join your comrades in the impending battle which soon occurred. For this and all other services your names will ever be held in remembrance. With these few remarks, I have the honor to present to you the stand of colors which was given to the Scott Light Guard by the ladies of New-York, which have been in the custody of this City since your absence to the field of battle. We have kept them with care, and return them to you as we received them.

Upon receiving the colors, Col. McGREGOR replied:

COL. M'GREGOR'S SPEECH.

MR. MAYOR AND GENTLEMEN OF THE COMMON COUNCIL: In consequence of the absence of Brig.-Gen. J. H. WARD, the next senior officer of this company will receive back these colors. When we left this city two years ago, we deposited these colors with the municipal authorities in the presence of this regiment, which then numbered over a thousand men. We receive them back from you in the presence of the same regiment now reduced to the small number of four hundred men, sobered by hard service, chastened by discipline, and having cause to regret the loss of many a brave spirit who fell upon the field of battle. If the country's service requires us again and we can be of any use, our swords will be once more unsheathed. We appreciate the flattering compliments paid our regiment, and are grateful to the authorities for the kindness they have shown us.

At the conclusion of Col. McGREGOR's speech the line was reformed and proceeded out of the Park to Broadway, thence up to Union-square, up Fourth-avenue, through Twenty-fifth-street to Broadway, down which it returned. In passing the Fifth-avenue Hotel the column was reviewed by Gen. SCOTT, who stood upon the balcony attired in full military costume. As the regiments and companies filed by they gave vociferous cheers for the venerable hero, who in return acknowledged the complimented with the customary salute. When the carriages bearing the disabled were passing the General inquired whom they contained, and upon being informed, waved a kiss to the inmates. The colors of the Veteran Scott Life Guard were suspended from the balcony on either side of the General. A salute was fired from a battery stationed near Madison-square. The escort proceeded with the Fourth regiment to the City Assembly Rooms and then marched to their respective headquarters. Under the auspices of the City authorities a sumptuous had been prepared, which was partaken of by the soldiers with a decided relish. The entertainment was presided over by Alderman FARLEY, who proposed the first toast—"The Union as it was, and the Constitution as it is," which was befittingly responded to by Major KEEGAN. Other toasts and responses followed, and patriotic speeches were made by guests present. The gastronomical arrangements were superintended by Mr. WOOD, the excellent caterer to the Astor House. The party did not adjourn till a late hour.

A Card from the First New-York Volunteers.

The ex-officers of the First regiment New-York Volunteers, through a Committee consisting of Major JAMES M. SURMER, Capts. BERGE and UNDERHILL, desire to say to the citizens of New-York and their fellow-citizens in other States that nearly one month since a a delegation from the Seventh New-York State Militia tendered an escort to the First on its arrival in New-York City. The Colonel, and his officers through him, accepted the invitation. They only ask that those who may take exception to their arrival "home," will bear in mind the fact that the regiment left New-York Bay on Sunday, and that it arrived back again after two years' faithful service on Sunday; with the additional fact that on the Sunday previous, they had lost one hundred and twenty men—killed, wounded and missing—from their ranks.

Costiveness.—No person can feel well while a costive habit of body prevails, and no one can expect to enjoy health permanently who permits it, for it is contrary to the economy of the system, and gives rise to a goodly proportion of the ills which afflict the human race. To neglect it, therefore, is to insure ill health of greater or less duration; yet, in attempting its removal, discrimination with regard to the remedies to be used is requisite. Violent purgatives temporarily remove obstructions, weaken the bowels, and reduce the strength of the patient, and are followed usually by greater constipation, rendering another and another dose necessary, until even the strongest purgatives lose their effect, and the patient's condition becomes deplorable. What is required is a gentle purgative—one having some action on the liver, and one that can be taken daily without impairing the strength of the patient, or injury to the system, until the tendency to constipation is removed. But few remedies have been found to meet these requirements, and of these few probably none have been so successful, as demonstrated by many years' use, as Dr. D. JAYNE'S SANATIVE PILLS. They are usually taken every night at bedtime, causing, in proper doses, no inconvenience during the night, and producing no sickness or unpleasant effect during the day, so that persons may follow their usual avocations, whether of business or pleasure, in the same manner as if they had not taken the Pills. Their good effect will begin to be obvious after a week or two's use, particularly in greater clearness of mind, and an increased energy and disposition to work and to enjoy life, and their continued use in the restoration of the health to the patient. IRON IN THE HUMAN SYSTEM!
IRON IN THE HUMAN SYSTEM!
IRON IN THE HUMAN SYSTEM!
IRON IN THE HUMAN SYSTEM!
IRON IN THE HUMAN SYSTEM!
IRON IN THE HUMAN SYSTEM!
The principal vital force in the human system is the iron contained in the blood. This is derived chiefly from the food we eat; but if the food is not properly digested, or if from any cause whatever the necessary quantity of iron is not taken into the circulation, or becomes reduced, the whole system suffers. The bad blood will irritate the heart, will clog up the lungs, will stupefy the brain, will obstruct the liver, and will send its disease-producing elements to all parts of the system, and every one will suffer in whatever organ may be predisposed to disease. The great value of IRON AS A MEDICINE
is well known and acknowledged by all medical men. The difficulty has been to obtain such a preparation of it as will enter the circulation, and assimilate at once with the blood. This point, says Dr. Hayes, Massachusetts State Chemist, has been attained in the Peruvian Syrup, by combination in a way before unknown.
THE PERUVIAN SYRUP
THE PERUVIAN SYRUP
THE PERUVIAN SYRUP
THE PERUVIAN SYRUP
Is a Protected Solution of the
PROTOXIDE OF IRON,
And strikes at the root of disease by supplying the blood with its LIFE ELEMENT, IRON.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fever, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all Diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by Debility or a Low State of the System.
Being free from alcohol in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing STRENGTH, VIGOR and NEW LIFE into all parts of the system, and building up an IRON CONSTITUTION.
It is an excellent substitute for wine or brandy, where a stimulant is needed.
One element in the restorative power of iron as a medicine is its magnetic action and the electricity developed thereby.
To take medicine to cure diseases occasioned by a deficiency of IRON IN THE BLOOD,
without restoring it to the system, is like trying to repair a building when the foundation is gone.
The proofs of the efficacy of this remedy, in THOUSANDS OF CASES where ordinary medicines have failed to give relief, are so well established that invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
For a SPRING MEDICINE it has no equal.

CERTIFICATES.
This is to certify that, about eighteen months ago, I commenced using STERLING'S AMBROSIA. My hair was short, thin, and rapidly falling out. I had tried many Hair Tonics, Invigorators, &c., without receiving any benefit. Soon after using the Ambrosia, my hair ceased falling out, and commenced growing so rapidly as to astonish me. Now, my hair is thick, soft and glossy, and is five feet four inches in length—when let down, reaching to the floor. This wonderful result I attribute solely to the use of STERLING'S AMBROSIA, as since I commenced using it I have applied nothing else to my hair.

DEAFNESS
NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
Dr. VON EISENBERG.
Author of "Surgical and Practical Observations on the Diseases of the Ear, with his new Mode of Treatment."
NEW TESTIMONY.
"NEW-YORK, May 6.
I was entirely deaf in my left ear, accompanied by a discharge. I placed myself under Dr. VON EISENBERG's care, who, by his great skill, restored me to perfect hearing, in the short space of a few minutes, without giving me the slightest pain, and the discharge has ceased entirely. The Eustachian Tube, which was obliterated, is quite open, and I feel that the air-passage performs its functions. I am amply satisfied, and recommend every one suffering from impaired hearing to place themselves under the treatment of this eminent and successful physician.
THOMAS GRANAN, No. 539 6th-av."
"NEW-YORK, May 7, 1863.
I have great pleasure to testify to the skill of Dr. VON EISENBERG. I went into his office almost completely deaf, and came out with my perfect hearing. It is nearly twelve months since, and the hearing is perfect. The operation, which lasted two or three minutes in each of my ears, gave me no pain whatsoever. I, with confidence, recommend all sufferers to place themselves under Dr. VON EISENBERG's unsurpassing skill.
SAMUEL C. HUNT,
No. 6 Meserole-av., Greenpoint, L. I."
WEST HOUSTON-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.
I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.
I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.
JOHN TAYLOR.
NEW-YORK, July 19, 1862.
This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.
CARROLL J. POST, No. 28 South-st.
No. 188 MERCER-ST., NEW-YORK.
J. E. VON EISENBERG, M. D.—Dear Doctor: I have been afflicted with total deafness, and was induced to pay you a visit. No one can imagine my delight when, after one operation, my hearing was suddenly, and without pain, restored to me, for which I feel very grateful. After being totally deaf—almost shut out from the pleasure of using so necessary a sense—to have it returned, and to hear so distinctly, reflects great credit on you for the immense amount of skill you possess. I beg to thank you for what I can so truly appreciate. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.
CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ
NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.
"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

PURE BLOOD CURES.—WHEN THE BILE has not the requisite healthy qualities, we become costive. To restore the bile to a state of health, the blood must be purified. You cannot purify the blood but by occasional purgatives, and they should be continued for several days in succession, then there may be a greater or less interval of rest. Some persons have used BRANDRETH's Pills every day in small doses until they became cured of costiveness, which had troubled them for over twenty years. The use of this medicine does not debilitate or require an increase of dose from continued use. They in fact strengthen the bowels, as exercise does the arms or legs.
DANIEL J. TENNY, of Astor House, New-York, cured himself of costiveness of ten years standing by their use alone.
Mr. COOK, Editor of Democratic Banner, Bennington, Vt., cured of costiveness and dyspepsia by BRANDRETH's Pills, when all other medicines had failed, and when his doctors pronounced him incurable.
Mr. BLISS, of Bushwick, cured of debility and costiveness by BRANDRETH's Pills, when he despaired of ever regaining his health.
Remember reference will be given to persons whom BRANDRETH's Pills have cured of costiveness of over twenty years' duration, and in cases where no natural action of the bowels had taken place in twenty years.

HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT
Is of more general practical utility than any invention now before the public. It has been thoroughly tested during the last two years by practical men, and pronounced by all to be Superior to any Adhesive Preparation known.
HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT
Is a new thing, and the result of years of study; the combination is on SCIENTIFIC PRINCIPLES,
And under no circumstances or change of temperature will it become corrupt or emit any offensive smell.
BOOT AND SHOE
Manufacturers, using Machines, will find it the best article known, for Cementing the Channels, as it works without delay, is not affected by any change of temperature.
JEWELERS
Will find it sufficiently adhesive for their use, as has been proved.
IT IS ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO LEATHER,
And we claim as an especial merit, that it sticks patches and linings to boots and shoes sufficiently strong without stitching.
IT IS THE ONLY LIQUID CEMENT
Extant that is a sure thing for mending
FURNITURE, CROCKERY, TOYS, BONE, IVORY,
And articles of household use.
REMEMBER HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT is in a liquid form, and as easily applied as paste.

PROPOSALS.

ANTHRACITE COAL FOR THE NAVY.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF EQUIPMENT AND RECRUITING, May 6, 1863.

SEALED PROPOSALS for furnishing Anthracite Coal for the Navy, to be delivered during the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1864, will be received at this Bureau until 3 o'clock, the 6th day of June, 1863.

These proposals must be indorsed, "Proposals for Anthracite Coal for Steamers," that they may be distinguished from other business letters.

The offer must be for the delivery of 100,000 tons, of 2,240 pounds.

The coal must be of the best Buck Mountain or Black Heath, or of a kind equal to them in all respects for the purpose intended, which equality will be determined by a board appointed by the Secretary of the Navy, after the reception of the bids.

The name of the coal proposed to be furnished must be stated in the offer.

It is to be delivered in lumps of suitable size for naval steamers—clean, of uniform quality, selected free from impurities, unmixed; of which the contractor will be required to furnish such evidence as will be satisfactory; and be subject to such inspection as to quality and quantity as the Department may direct. The coal must, in all respects, be satisfactory to the inspector or inspectors to be appointed by the Bureau, who will have the right of peremptory rejection.

The coal is to be delivered on board vessels at such place in the port of Philadelphia as may be designated by the Bureau, and in such quantities and at such times as, in the opinion of the Bureau, the exigencies of the service may require; commencing when the vessel is reported ready to receive cargo, furnishing, if demanded, not less than 1,000 tons per day, to be distributed to each vessel as may be directed, until the loading is completed.

Proposals will likewise be received for the delivery of 30,000 tons, of the same quality of coal, to be delivered in the port of New-York, on board vessels as at Philadelphia.

In the case of failure to deliver the coal in proper quantity, of the proper quality, and at the proper time and place, the Bureau will reserve in the contract the right to purchase forthwith, at the contractor's risk and expense, that which may be necessary to supply the deficiency.

Any demurrage or other charge to which the Navy Department may be subjected from delay in the prompt delivery of the coal by the contractors will be deducted from their bills.

The price must be for the coal delivered on board vessels, on the terms and conditions above stated, at the contractor's risk and expense, and without extra charge of any kind.

The offer, as required by law, must be accompanied by a written guarantee, signed by one or more responsible persons, to the effect that they undertake that the bidder or bidders will, if his or their bid be accepted, enter into obligation, in such time as may be prescribed by the Bureau, with good and sufficient sureties, to furnish the supplies proposed.

No proposition will be considered unless accompanied by such guarantee; and the Department reserves the right to reject all the offers, if considered to be to the interest of the service to do so.

Two or more sureties, in a sum equal to the amount specified to be paid, will be required to sign the contract, and their responsibility will be certified by a United States District Judge, United States District Attorney, Collector, or Navy Agent.

As additional and collateral security, twenty per cent. will be withheld from the amount of all payments, which reservation is not to be paid except by authority of the Secretary of the Navy, until the contract shall have been in all respects complied with; and the remaining 80 per cent., or other amount that may be due upon each bill, will, when a proper certificate is furnished by the inspector, and the bill approved by the Bureau, be paid by such navy agents as the contractor may name, within ten days after the warrants for the same shall have been passed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

It will be stipulated in the contract that if default be made in the delivery of the coal, in the quantity, of the quality, and at the place and time directed by the Bureau, then, and in that case, the contractor and his sureties will forfeit and pay to the United States, as liquidated damages, a sum of money not exceeding twice the contract price, which may be recovered from time to time, according to the act or acts of Congress in that case provided.

Bidders whose proposals shall be accepted, and none other, will be notified, and, as early as practicable, a contract will be transmitted to them, which they will be required to execute within ten days after its receipt at the Post-office or navy agency named by them.

The form of offer, guarantee, and certificate is herewith given:

OWNERS OF STEAM VESSELS ARE INVITED to send to the Quartermaster-General's Office tenders for their charter or sale.

Senders should contain descriptions of the vessels, their dimensions, enrolled or registered tonnage, actual carrying capacity, material, whether coppered, whether side-wheel or propellers, whether iron or copper fastened, size and power of engines and boilers; and should state the price at which they are offered, for long or short charter, with the estimated value of the vessel in case of loss, or in case the Government should prefer to purchase instead of chartering.

PROPOSALS.

ARMY SUPPLIES.

OFFICE OF ASSISTANT-COMMISSARY-GENERAL OF SUBSISTENCE, No. 4 State-st., New-York, April 28, 1863.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned, at this office, until 4 o'clock P. M. on TUESDAY, the 12th of May, 1863, for furnishing DESICCATED AND COMPRESSED MIXED VEGETABLES, for issue to the United States army for twelve months from the first of November next, at the rate of one hundred and thirty-five thousand pounds per month.

The ingredients of the mixed vegetables furnished under the contracts of the current year are as follows, viz.: To each one hundred pounds of the mixed vegetables, twenty pounds of potatoes, twenty-two pounds of white turnips, twenty-two pounds of carrots, ten pounds of cabbage, ten pounds of onions, five pounds of string beans, five pounds of tomatoes, one pound of celery or parsley, and five pounds of rice. As the mixture can undoubtedly be improved by diminishing the quantity of some of the coarser vegetables and increasing some of the others, as well as by introducing some vegetables not heretofore used, proposers are invited to send in proposals with accompanying samples, not only of the mixture as above given, but also of other mixtures, varying therefrom according to the experience and judgment of the proposer, with a view of effecting an improvement in this article of military supply. Proposers are required to give the exact proportions of the different ingredients of their several samples, with price per pound of each, packed as required. When it is practicable, each of the vegetables in a separate state, and after desiccation, will be submitted for inspection. Only those parts of each vegetable commonly used as food will be accepted for the mixture.

The mixed vegetables are to be very compactly compressed into cakes of seven pounds each, ten of these cakes being packed in a tin or zinc box made air-tight, with two of these boxes packed in a wooden box made of suitable seasoned stuff, not less than five-eighths of an inch thick, with sunken ends one inch thick, strengthened with outside lining pieces. Boxes to be strapped with hickory at the ends.

Proposals must, so far as practicable, be accompanied with at least one box as above described, with contents of the proposer's own manufacture of each of the mixtures he may offer to furnish.

The location of the manufacturing establishment must be stated.

There being a choice among the different varieties of vegetables, proposers will state with precision the especial varieties they use, or propose to use, in their mixtures.

Each bid, to have consideration, must contain the written guarantee of two responsible names, as follows:

"We, the undersigned, hereby agree that should all or any part of the above bid be accepted, we will give our bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars that the contract shall be duly fulfilled.

——————"

Proposals must be indorsed "Proposals for Dessiccated and Compressed Mixed Vegetables."

The Hay and Straw to be securely baled.

All Grain and Hay offered to be subject to a rigid inspection by the Government Inspector.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by DR. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and expense than any one can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much-neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to DR. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st., the only place. Call, send or write.

SURE CURE—BY DR. POWERS, SUCCESSfully consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st. Conducted on the plan of the Hospital des Veneriens, Paris, where those afflicted with any form of private disease can receive prompt treatment, without risk or exposure, viz.: Syphilis, gonorrhœa, gleet, strictures, ulcers, tumors, cancers, secondary and constitutional syphilis, diseases of the kidneys, &c., &c. Thirty years of extensive practice, exclusively devoted to the treatment of those complaints enable us to effect cures in cases where others of less experience have failed. Dr. Powers' Essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitutions—physical disqualifications, impediments to marriage, thereby speedily cured. The men to consult, Drs. Ward and Powers, the champions and kings of venereal diseases, possessing the most certain, speedy and only effectual remedies in the world, guarantee a perfect cure, or no charge, in from one to three days. Established in 1840. N. B.—Those who have used their preventives are never without. Send for a circular. To Ladies.—Dr. Powers' Periodical Drops are a safe and certain remedy for monthly irregularities. The above remedies sent by mail. The afflicted should read their circular. Postage free, on receipt of a stamp. Cures warranted.

DRS. TRALL & JACKSON'S "PATHOLOGY OF THE REPRODUCTIVE ORGANS."—"This is really a scientific work of great practical value. All other works on the subjects discussed in this volume, that have fallen under our observation, are addressed mainly to a prurient taste, and are positively pernicious."—Chicago Tribune. "This volume is full of scientific information of incalculable benefit in the cure of disease."—New-Bedford Mercury. "It is unquestionably the most complete, the most sensible and the most valuable work of its kind yet published."—The New-Yorker. "It offers judicious advice to suffering humanity, which will save thousands from complicating their afflictions by resorting to quack doctors and empirical treatment."—Boston Journal. "It is the only work in existence containing directions which will positively CURE that distressing disease termed spermatorrhœa, and other sexual diseases which cause so much misery to the human family."—Boston Express.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. No. 3 Division-st., New-York, the only place. Beware of bogus Dr. Hunters. The City is full of knaves, up to every trick to rob him of his great reputation as a skillful and reliable physician. He has no other office but No. 3 Division-st. Established in 1834. Eight separate rooms and a private entrance.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. WARD'S Great Female Benefactor or Golden Regulating Pills. Infallible in correcting, regulating and removing all obstructions, from whatever cause, and they will never disappoint the anxious patient. Office, No. 12 Laight-st., where Dr. WARD can be consulted, confidentially, day and evening.

DR. JOHNSON, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY be consulted with confidence on private diseases. Thirty years in one specialty enables him to guarantee speedy and permanent cures. N. B.—Those who may have been misled by quack advertisements, nostrums, &c., can call on Dr. J. with the certainty of receiving honorable treatment.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it; and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

THE STATE OF THE NATION.

Wendell Phillips at the Cooper Institute.

THE UNION SAFE.

The Administration All Wrong---General Hooker All Right.

THE RADICAL ABOLITION PROGRAMME.

The announcement that WENDELL PHILLIPS would speak last night, upon the "State of the Country," at the Cooper Institute, drew together.

The lecture was delivered at the instance of the Sixteenth Ward Republican Association, and the price of admission to no part of the hall was less than 25 cents, while at least one-half of the seats were reserved, at double that sum.

Among the notable gentlemen on the platform were Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, D. D., Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Mayor Opdyke, Hon. H. B. Stanton, Rev. J. R. W. Sloane and Prof. Henry S. Cox, while in the audience sat Maj.-Gen. FREMONT.

Just before the meeting was called to order, Mr. O. JOHNSON stepped forward and announced the various Anti-Slavery meetings that are to be held this week; after which he said that the few vacant reserved seats near the centre of the hall might be filled by those who desired to take them. The permission caused a lively scramble for the coveted places on the part of those standing near the entrances, which was as undignified as it was amusing.

Mr. WILLIAM C. RUSSELL was then chosen presiding officer of the meeting, and after Mr. ADAMS, of the Sixteenth Ward, had favored the audience with a patriotic song, he introduced the orator of the evening, characterizing him as the man who, more than any other, excepting JOHN BROWN, had done more to bring the nation to the brink of Jordan. After the applause which greeted Mr. PHILLIPS' appearance had subsided, he said:

SPEECH OF WENDELL PHILLIPS.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: I understand this is a Ward meeting—the Sixteenth Ward of New-York—the banner Ward for radical republicanism. [Applause.] A very respectably sized meeting for a Ward meeting. [Laughter.] I am glad, for the first time in my life, to be adopted into the politics of New-York City, and to address a Ward meeting in behalf of justice and liberty. The text of my address, "The Lesson of the Hour," it seems to me is patience—faith. "Possess your souls in patience." Not as if already attained; not as if we were already perfect; but because the whole nation, as one man, has for more than a year set its face Zionward. Ever since September of last year the nation has turned its face Zionward, and ever since BURNSIDE took the helm of the vessel, it has moved toward that point. [Applause.] Now a nation moving—and moving in the right path—there is no reason for doubt: there is no occasion for despair. We have found out at last the method, and we are in earnest. Patience! The patience of great souls—all that makes conquest certain when the human heart is once capable of this great courage. No matter what the scenes may be on the horizon. No matter how slow the motion, either official or national, may be, now it is God lifts the cloud and shows us the blue sky behind. No matter how dark the political mistake and treachery may lower, the moment comes when the great North sees that it is all a phantasmagoria, and that behind the great heart of the nation beats true to its destiny. [Applause.] When I stood on this platform months ago, men said "You must not be surprised if blood flows in the streets; traitors are trying to take the great Capital of the North out of our arms, and the Democratic party of the State is behind them." But, one fine morning there was treachery in the leading Democracy of Albany and the Mayor of New-York defeated him in his first move. [Applause.] When the counties came to be represented, the leaders found an army of officers, but no rank and file. The Goliah of Connecticut Copperheads has been vanquished—not by a stripling, but by a girl. [Applause.] Or, if I must add to her merits those of Gen. HAMILTON, of Texas, the eloquent champion of the Union in the contest in Connecticut, we can almost say "out of the mouth of girls and slaveholders God is perfecting liberty." [Applause.] No; I have no doubt—no despair. One after another the shams of the North fell away. It is to be a long fight; no local struggle; only one share of the great battle going on the world over, and which began ages ago; one grand division, one army corps doing its duty in the great struggle betwixt free institutions and caste institutions the world over—freedom and democracy, and the institutions that rest upon caste. We are only outskirts of that struggle, and wherever caste lives, wherever caste-power exists, whether it be on the banks of the Thames or of the Seine, whether by the side of the Ganges or the Danube, there the South has an ally, as certainly as the surgeon's knife causes pain when it touches the living fibre; [applause;] and against that mighty marshaling of everything that is strong in human selfishness, the North does battle. Now, that democratic element in the North is strong enough were it only united, to have crushed all its foes on this continent in ninety days. There never was a time since the commencement of the struggle when, if the North had been a unit, the war might not have been ended in three months; and, so ended, it would have left Slavery where it found it. But the North has never been a unit. With the North as a unit, democratic, intelligent, resolved, in earnest, the South would not have risked the struggle. But she knew that the North was divided into three great parties. One was routine—West Point—too lazy to think. [Laughter and applause.] I resolve hunkerism into indolence, and indolence into cowardice—too lazy to think and not daring to think. The man of the past is the man who got his ideas before he was twenty and would rather think as his father thought than take the liberty of thinking for himself. He is a hunker, and will die such. The North had a second element—the race-hatred of the negro—negrophobia, a Saxon contempt for the black blood; disgusted with the question of the negro; the hatred of him as another race, and contempt of him as a slave; and the weariness of the question. Outside of that was the demand of the North in the good sense of the term—the men that believed in the manhood of his brother the world over, and was willing to say he should have his rights. Against such a North the South rebelled—one hand tied behind it by negro hatred and the other by constitutional scruples, and West Point on its shoulders—[laughter and applause]—against such a North the South rebelled. You remember it well. The North that never dared to apply the plummet and the line to the civil life—that never dared to have logic that did not know any black or any white when it recognized its duties; and the North, that both in pulpit and civil life believed and obeyed the old proverb, "when the monkey reigns let every man dance." [Laughter.] So long as a wicked and contemptible institution had honors, wealth and fashion to bestow, so long the "pregnant knee" was crooked before it. The North and South met in battle. Mistaken as were the Abolitionists, (that is, the issue is to show, but we hope so)—mistaking, as we did, how far the canker had gone; how great a weight this routine and hunkerism had on the body of the people—the North rallied itself for the struggle, poured out our money like water, and our sons with ever-growing willingness to meet the great battle betwixt Democracy and Liberty—betwixt God and the devil, for the world and the century. [Applause.] The Government was equally in the dark—equally undecided—equally uncertain what course to pursue; and for a long time they stumbled. Why? Well, I think because our rulers were educated Whigs. The old Whig party, good as it was in many respects; virtuous; in many of its impulses correct; uncertain in its aspirations; had one great and fatal defect—it had no confidence in the people; it had no trust in the masses. It did not believe in the conscience or intelligence of the millions. It looked out upon the Old World as in a probate court, of which the educated and the wealthy were the guardians. And so when this Government entered upon the great work of defending the nation in its utmost peril, they dared not fling themselves on the bosom of the millions, and trust the country, and the hearts of those that loved it. Your President sat in Washington, doubtful what he might do, and how far he might go. Month after month he, stumbling, faithless and uncertain, he ventured now a little step and now another, surprised that at every step the nation were before him, ready to welcome any word, and support any policy, to hold up any blow that he chose to aim; so that matters of vexed dispute, matters of earnest doubt, the moment the bugle gave certain sound, passed into dead issues. You know that when the rebellion first broke out, no man dared to think of touching the negro. The South fought to sustain Slavery, and the North fought not to have it hurt. [Laughter and applause.] BUTLER [applause] pronounced the magic word "contraband." He summoned the negro into the arena. It is a poor word, I do not know that it is sound law, but Mr. CHATHAM'S nullus tibi homo is coarse Latin, but it is worth all the classics. Contraband is a bad word, and may be bad law, but it is worth all the Constitution, for in a moment of critical emergency it summoned a saving element into the national arena, and it showed the Government how far the sound fibre of the nation extended. When FREMONT, [applause] why won't you ever allow me to go on when I name FREMONT? [Renewed applause.] I say when he pronounced the word emancipation on the banks of the Mississippi the whole North, except the Government, said amen. [Applause.] The Government doubted until the 22d of September, 1862, but the moment the Government pronounced the word, it has floated into a dead issue, and nobody now doubts or debates about the emancipation of slaves. It only shows you how strong the Government is if it will only act, and how certain the heart of the people is to support it if the Government will only test it. If LINCOLN could be only made to accept the lines of the old huntsman's song and he could carry thirty millions of people behind him through every barrier, to victory and to peace. [Applause.] I believe, therefore, in ultimate success, because every act of the Government is more than indorsed by the intelligence and virtue of the people, and that is the only point at issue. To-day your City roars with the tumult of the welcome of our returned soldiers; they come back, not empty-handed, bringing hope and victory with their banners.

"Sit close in the saddle,
And give him his head,"

Those soldiers will find not Virginia, eaten over with barrenness, not starving people, not empty treasuries; they will find a North untouched—so much money that we have no need to go abroad and ask for it. [Applause.] So much wheat we could feed the world. [Applause.] Such ample munitions of war that your traitor merchants smuggle it into Carolina. [Applause.] The untouched North. [Applause.] So the South, mustering all her white men and all her sympathisers the world over, has not yet touched the garnered treasure of Northern strength. We have not yet put forth the first beginning of our power. If we fail, it will be because we deserve to fail, because we have not virtue enough to prefer the end to the means. There is no question but of the conscience and the intelligence of the North. Now I believe in them, because thus far the Government has never asked for anything nor ventured anything that the readiness of the people have not both given and indorsed. There is my ground of hope. I do not believe in Southern exhaustion. There may be starving men at the South—there may be starving households, ill-clad soldiers, but there is no such exhaustion as approaches despair. The South has not yet begun to play her last card. The moment she feels exhaustion she will proclaim liberty. The moment her cause touches its downfall, in the opinion of its leaders, she will call the black into her ranks—call him by some proclamation of gradual emancipation which will give to her side the heartiest sympathy of English society. England never was an Anti-Slavery nation; her ruling classes never accepted emancipation as any basis. England herself never accepted immediate abolition on any basis. As O'CONNELL well said, "The scheme of immediate emancipation was carried over Parliament by the conscience of the middle classes," and they do not rule in England. To-day that party in the contest that offers gradual emancipation will offer her all that her judgment approves. Before the South permits her banner to stagger, she will write upon it, Gradual Emancipation, and secure the House of Commons to her side. The moment she utters that word, I shall deem that she feels weak in the knees—never till then. There is no exhaustion that touches the traitor. The men that rebelled are the slaveholders—rebelled, for on the pretence of Slavery, with the real purpose of killing republican institutions, and founding aristocratic institutions in their place. [Applause.] Slavery was the point to be protected, and the pretence that rallied the rebellion; but now that it is afoot, its leaders throw off the mask, and, without concealment, avow at home that their object is, to put this belted continent under the control of aristocratic institutions for the perpetuation of this system, among others, which they love. That element has yet felt no exhaustion. With that element I have no plea of conciliation. I am for conciliation, but not for conciliating the slaveholder. Death to the system, and death to the master, is the only motto. [Great applause.] There is a party for whom I have the right hand of conciliation—and whenever the foot of military despotism is lifted from them, that party, I believe, that in the South itself we shall be surprised at the weight, strength and numbers, of the men who still love the Union—there is a party for whom I have conciliation, and this is its representative (leading forward the little white slave-girl baptised by Mr. BEECHER last Sunday). [Applause.] In the veins that beat now in my right hand, run the best blood in Virginia of the white race and the better blood of the black race of the Old Dominion—[applause]—the united race to whom in its virtue belongs, in the future, a country by the toil and the labor of its ancestors redeemed from nature and given to civilization and the Nineteenth Century. [Applause.] For that class I have ever an open door of conciliation—the labor, the toil, the muscle, the virtue, the strength, the democracy of the Southern States. This blood represents them both. The converted master, when he sees matters in their true light—the slave restored to his rights; when at last, for the first time in our history, Virginia has a Government and is not a horde of pirates mimicking a Government. Yes, the South has not yet felt the first symptom of exhaustion. Get no delusive hope that our conquest is to come through any such source. This war will never be ended by an event; it will never come to a close by a great battle; it is too deep in its sources; it is too weighty in its influence for that. The great struggle in England betwixt Democracy and Nobility lasted from 1642 to 1660, taking a King's life in its progress, and yet failed. The great struggle betwixt the same parties in France began in '93, and is not yet ended. Our own Revolution began in '75, and never, until the outbreak of the French rebellion concentrated the attention of monarchy upon Europe, was this country left in peace. Ten or twenty years it will take to clear off the scars of such a struggle. Prepare yourselves for a life-long enlistment. How is the Government to be held up in such a struggle? It is to be held up by our educating the mass and the opinion of the masses to the great function to which Providence has summoned them. The Government looks to the people for its initiative. As Lord LYONS said in his dispatch to Earl RUSSELL: "A Republican Government dares not initiate a policy; it looks outward, and asks what its opponents will consent to." That is now the condition of the Government; hence the necessity of outspoken, perpetual, constant education of public opinion. I do not believe in the Government at Washington. I believe in the nation; I believe in events; I believe in the inevitable tendency of these coming ten years toward Liberty and Union; but it is to be done as England did it in 1640, by getting rid gradually, man by man, of those who do not believe in progress, but in the past; and, as man by man of that class retires, and we bring to the front men who are earnest in the present, victory, strength, peace, are to be the result. Now, for the present, I believe in HOOKER. [Great applause.] Men say he has faults—faults which some of his predecessors did not have. [Applause and laughter.] Perhaps he has, but in my opinion a diamond with a flaw is better than a pebble without. [Renewed applause.] I do not set one defeat against him; I think, as my Lord BACON says, "that a soldier's honor should be of a strong web which slight matters won't stick to." I believe HOOKER is of that kind. He means to fight, he knows how to fight, and these two are new elements at the head of the army. [Applause, and three cheers for Gen. HOOKER.] Now, on the other side of the Rappahannock—why, how pleasant HOOKER'S reign has been! Instead of that cradle lullaby that we used to hear a year ago, there comes now to us, All is not quiet on the banks of the Rappahannock. [Applause and laughter.] On the other side there are three elements. LEE means to fight; he knows how to fight; he is deadly in earnest. The Government, when it sent HOOKER to the front, sent there a man who means to fight, who knows how to fight; and when last week they summoned SIGEL to his side—[Applause]—they put earnestness to the front also. I look upon it as the first drop of the coming shower. We have had men that neither knew how to fight, nor meant to fight—no ability. Now we have got ability. To match the other side we want earnestness, ideas, a willingness to sacrifice everything, a readiness to accept the issue, and courage and an industry in thinking. We have got two Generals-in-Chief—two Commanders-in-Chief. They both live in Washington. The sad news reaches us to-day that one means to take the field. [Laughter and applause.] LINCOLN and HALLECK—[Laughter]—they stayed in Washington, Commanders-in-Chief, exercising the same disastrous influence that even a BONAPARTE would exercise on a battle, if he tried to fight it by telegraph, a hundred miles distant. But now, it is said, one of them intends to take the field. Heaven forbid! [Applause and laughter.] Now, the difference between HALLECK and FREMONT is just this. One has not learned anything since he graduated at West Point, and does not want to; he does not mean to undertake the labor of thinking; he is too indolent to go about examining a new idea; it is enough for him that it wasn't in the text-books when he graduated. [Laughter.] The battle wasn't fought so when he was taught, and if he is beat according to the book, he is willing to be beat. The German commander's complaint of NAPOLEON, when he first launched into the battle-field, was, "He violates all the rules." Now, his Missouri rival accepted the nineteenth century; [applause;] he thought out the issue for himself. He had the labor of meeting new contingencies. He went to the head of the army a living man, not a dead printed book [laughter]—and in my opinion I am beyond likes and dislikes. The time is too serious for antipathies or likings; all these men—they are nothing but dead lumber to be used, to be thrown into the gulf, that the nation may march with flowing ensigns to Liberty and Peace. [Applause.] But never will this rebellion be put down while West Point rules it at Washington, never. [Applause.] And it does rule while that second Commander-in-Chief cuts off everything that outgoes his own routine. These are two great distinctions to be made in the army and in the State. One is such a man as HALLECK—hates negroes, hates novelties, distrusts ideas—rejects everything but red tape; the other is HAMILTON, and BUTLER, and PHELPS, and FREMONT [applause] the men of ideas. SIGEL is on the field—I hope he will drag in the rest. The cook takes an onion—when she cooks it, she peels off layer after layer, till she gets to the white, sound vegetable. Peel off SEWARD, peel off HALLECK, peel off BLAIR, and and then you get to the sound national element—the civil and military purpose, the earnest belief, the intense devotion to victory, the entire belief in justice, which meets Stonewall JACKSON equally. [Applause.] Never until then shall we succeed. I have compared Gen. HALLECK and Gen. FREMONT. You may take another parallel. One is SEWARD, another is BUTLER. Mr. SEWARD does not believe in the war. He believes in diplomacy; he believes in compromise; he believes in politics. He has prophesied again and again that his war, like the divisions of former times, could be quieted in sixty or ninety days. He thought so. If he had not, he had never risked his fame as a statesman by the prophesy. He said by the voice of a regular army officer in the cabin of the ship that went down to dismantle one flag, when foreign-bred soldiers begged American officers to stop and give them 300 men to save 2,000 cannon from the arms of the Confederates, and guaranteed to take that place and keep it three months, or six months, with 200 men, and one of his class took the Colonel into the cabin and said, "You do not understand this thing; this is not a war, it is a quarrel—we have had a dozen of them; we shall get over it in sixty days." He believes it now. He receives Commissioners; he sends Frenchmen to Richmond to know terms; he sends letters abroad dealing with rebels as equals in fact. BUTLER is the first man that ever meant Government; he is the first man, and it ought to be on his gravestone—he hung a rebel. [Applause.] Why, if I were a politician and a General, I would not live an hour till I was his twin. [Applause.] Shall it go down to history that one-third of the Union burst into the race of insurrection, and there was but one man, and he a Democrat, that cared to hang a felon? He said to Louisiana, "England calls you belligerents; you marshal armies and give commissions. All I know is, you are felons." If we take a Frenchman, we shoot him; if we take an Englishman we shoot him; if we take a Louisianian we hang him. [Applause.] The whole significance of the Department of the Southwest was in that gallows. The world may dignify the insurrection as it pleases—it is felony punishable with the gibbet; and when he said to the merchants of New-Orleans, "Every inch short of the gibbet is pure grace," [laughter and applause] and applause,] he represented the only theory that will ever conquer the rebellion—a Government in arms against criminals who have wasted its treasures, and filled 250,000 of murdered patriot graves—rebels, not belligerents. Now, in the two distinctions between HALLECK—routine—FREMONT, PHELPS, BUTLER—really, it is as the distinction between the two in military affairs, in the difference between SEWARD, a politician, and BUTLER a Government. Why, if Mr SEWARD is the Republican, God grant us a Democratic successor to the present President. [Applause]! I want somebody to occupy the Presidential chair that believes in Government, and believes in the people, that will act without his eyes over his shoulder to see how far the people will support him. We want leaders that will initiate, that will actually lead. Now, friends, my belief is, that you and I are bound to create an obliging, speaking, imperative public opinion that shall compel the Government to the adoption of such means and such men. [Applause.] I say such men, because, though I believe in events, because though I believe events are stronger than a Cabinet, and bearing us onward whether we will or no. I believe, also, in war, as harmonizing the issue of events. Let me make the Generals, and I do not care who makes the proclamations; only let me put at the head of the advancing columns of the Union certain men whom I name—the Cabinet at Washington may shut themselves up and go to sleep, with Rip Van Winkle, till 1873; for I know men

"One blast upon whose bugle-horn
Were worth a million men—"

only put them in the heart of the rebellion, where our armies ought to be. I believe in HOOKER—believe in his success. When it is done, what of it? Gratify the North—startle Europe—so far good. But what is for Virginia, if she is ours? Barrenness—exhausted by two years of war, neither army able to get a pound of sustenance from her acres! It will take two years to make her a self-sustaining State. What is Richmond? You might as well take Syracuse; you might as well float in a hundred thousand men upon Worcester. JEFF DAVIS can pick up twice as much as belongs to him in a carpet bag, and be gone in an hour. [Laughter.] The town is not hostile; the yellow flag might be put over every house, and we have got to sustain our own to be sustained when the United States flag floats above it. Besides, I do not like to fight on the rim of the wheel and let the enemy be at the hub. I am no Anaconda fancier. [Applause and laughter.] I would like to be at the head: I would put men, whose names you know but too well, in the black masses of the Carolinas, and Mississippi and fight outward, grinding to powder. They would come down and leave Virginia, and Virginia must be ours. Why, nothing but an army keeps her theirs. She would gravitate where she belongs—to the North. The slave system was practically dead there before '61; nothing but a Confederate force keeps her Southern. But now she could never be Southern. Bringing the negro into the war does not mean merely tracts—it means localities. When we bring the negro into the war, we fight in his home, in the Gulf States, where we ought to fight. The base of the rebellion, its heart—it is there that our army should stand. If victorious, the bottom of the tub is out; if contested, the armies must be withdrawn from the circumference and fight with us in the centre. You know whose names the slave cherishes as a household word in every hovel, and at whose bidding he will rise around the Stars and Stripes. Will the slave fight? Well, if any man asks you, tell him "No." If he asks you will the slave work, tell him "no;" but if he asks you whether the negro will fight, tell him "yes." He will work even for patriotism without any wages. He has worked at Fortress Monroe. The United States promised him twelve dollars a month—no, ten, keeping the first three for any stray contraband that may join him, taking the second four for the clothing of the contraband himself, and the other three Uncle Sam keeps. [Laughter.] Will he fight? Ask HIGGINSON. He says in one of his private letters, that when he carried that first regiment to St. Mary's, one soldier got seven buckshot in his neck, and, unlike some of the white volunteers, afraid of the hospital, he got a comrade to dig them out with a jack-knife, and went on to the next bush. Another, wounded in the left arm, afraid of the hospital, kept it secret forty-eight hours, till the swelling and pain was too great to be borne; at last he owned up sick. And a third, injured in the leg, bore it in silence for the sake of fighting one more skirmish; and when they sent him on picket duty, owned up sick, and went to the hospital. Do you think these men will fight? Another, with almost ludicrous carelessness, went into the skirmishes forward twenty paces, forward a dozen rods, fire, fall back, forward again, fire, and receiving fire; but they noticed he moved very clumsily, rather awkward, did not keep proper drill, and, when he came out of the battle, (rather scant of rations,) it was found he had picked up a live goose when he entered the skirmish, and held it all the while between his legs. [Loud laughter.] That man deserved his rations. I had the pleasure the other day of speaking to Gen. BUTLER, the first time in my life, thanking him for New-Orleans. I asked him his experience with the negroes. "Well," said he, "when MCCLELLAN was on the Peninsula I felt that I was very scant of men, and the army at Corinth might be down upon me any day; I said to the Government, 'Send me men, if you expect me to keep New-Orleans.' They answered me, 'We cannot spare you a man; but you must hold New-Orleans.' I sent them back word, "then I'll go to Africa." He sent for the officers of the old Louisiana regiment and said to them: "Will you fight for us?" "Willingly." "Produce your regiment, then, in ten days." They gave him a thousand men, and brought in their old commissions with line officers. He said, "Would you like to be colonel, major?" No, sir, contented we are, give us white men for those." "Then give me another regiment," said the Massachusett's Democrat. In twenty-one days there was another. "Give me a third, a fourth, and in ninety days four regiments and a battery; and then noticing one man, a mullato Captain, worth half a million, speaking five languages, welcoming him and his Staff to a banquet in his own house, of seven courses served on silver, he thought such a man had too much interest in New-Orleans to defend it as a Captain, and offered him a Major's commission. The man said, "Thank you; no matter where I fight, I only wish to spend what I have, and fight as long as I can, if only my boy may stand in the street equal to a white boy when the war is over. [Cheers.] Well, your New-York brothers went down there and thought he was not good enough to associate with them. How that regiment was recruited you know—perhaps not in this Sixteenth Ward, Mr. President—those who demanded the exiling of officers and almost the mustering out of men before they would fight. Well, now I tell you my opinion—a Yankee, just from the hub in Massachusetts. I do not believe, although you have adopted me into this Sixteenth Ward, that there was one man in that Zouave regiment fit to associate with my negroes in New-Orleans. [Laughter.] I do not believe there was a man in it; for the man that went down to the second city of the Union, and had it in his heart to refuse to stand side by side with its sons to defend its soil, is not worty to associate with them. That is the negro—and the more of them the better, The President said to one of Massachusetts, some three month ago, "I know I am going to lose 300,000 men in the Summer. I mean to supply their place with blacks. "Good," was our answer, because it is good policy, not because you need it. Put BUTLER and FREMONT to the front, and the Northwest will give you 300,000 men. [Applause.] He said, "Do you think so?" and, he said, "I mean certain Massachusetts men shall go down to New-Orleans and carry 150,000 guns with them. Why haven't they gone? Gen. HAMILTON comes to Boston, a slaveholder, and says, on our platform, "I am glad that my slaves are gone if it saves the Union." And, by the way, to go back a moment, if loyal men men will surrender their slaves to save the Union, don't you suppose the disloyal will surrender theirs to save the Confederacy? Do you suppose the South will stop before she runs on to her banner "emancipation" with such willingness. Gen. HAMILTON comes to Boston, and has the promise of the Cabinet at Washington over and over again that he may go to Texas and shut the back door of the rebellion, out of which traitors mean to fly when they are beaten, and through which Vicksburgh gets her strength to-day. Why don't he have it? Your own great fellow-citizen goes to Washington under the pledge of the President, too much in a hurry to allow him to leave Washington six hours, stays there a week, and comes back without a commission. Why? Because ABRAHAM LINCOLN is not President of the United States—because behind him, curbing his purpose, making conditions that baulk his designs, making him doubt the purpose and the strength of the North, standing around him in civil and military positions are men who don't mean that this battle shall be bravely and gallantly fought through. CROMWELL never succeeded until the new Parliament sluffed off every man that believed in the House of Lords, and left nothing but democrates behind. We shall never succeed until we sluff off everything that believes in the past, and put to the front everything that believes there is but one purpose, that is to save the Union on the basis of liberty. [Applause.] I believe that the President may do anything to save the Union. He may take a man's house, his lands, his bank stock, his horse, his slave—anything to save the Union. The Government may make every slave a freeman, no matter where he is—in Kentucky or Louisiana—now or to-morrow, with compensation or without it. Military necessity opens the door, but the moment Mr. LINCOLN enters it, there is but one duty under the Constitution, that is, to execute justice betwixt the master and the slave. Everywhere throughout the Union there is but one thing the Government cannot do to save the nation, and that is make a freeman into a slave. Everything else is within its power. I doubted somewhat when I heard the news from the Rappahannock until I saw that reverses had taught the nation where its strength lay; until SIGEL was called to Washington I doubted whether the Government was being educated in its pathway. The moment he left I saw sunlight behind the cloud, [Applause.] God grant us so many reverses that the Government may learn its duty—God grant us that the war may never end till it leaves us on the solid granite of impartial liberty and justice. [Renewed applause.] What we have go teach Washington is that that is the full purpose of the millions. And under and in it is the certainty of success. The millions, not the leaders—none of them. I am utterly impartial; neither President, Cabinet nor Senate. Peel off SEWARD, peel off HALLECK, peel off BLAIR, [A voice, "Good,"] peel off SUMNER—[Sensation]—yes, Massachusetts Senators as well as others, and I'll tell you why. When the Government called on New-England for a negro regiment, and we went from county to county urging the blacks to enlist, one Massachusetts Colonel dared to say, in the face of the enemy, that he would rather be whipped without negroes than conquer at their side. A Massachusetts Colonel in that hour of emergency and critical issue, his case within twenty days went before the Senate of the United States, and the very week that his apology was filed in the war office at Washington, Massachusetts Senators begged their reluctant brothers to make him a Brigadier-General. [Loud cries of "Shame."] A private, ignorant, uneducated, and just mustered into the service, mutinied in the streets of Boston, and Col. LOWELL shot him, rightfully. A Massachusetts Colonel mutinied in the face of the enemy, and a Massachusetts Senator made him a Brigadier-General. Such republicanism will never put down the rebellion. [Cheers.] Never until men welcome the negro, the foreigner, the German—all races, as a man, and melted together in a common nationality, hurl them a thunderbolt at caste and despotism, will the North deserve to triumph or earn it at the hands of a just God. But the North will triumph. I hear it. Do you remember in that disastrous siege in India when the Scotch girl raised her head from the pallet of the hospital, and said to the sickening hearts of the English, "I hear the bagpipe, the Campbells are coming;" and they said, "JESSIE, it is delirium." "No, I know it, I hear it afar off;" and in an hour the bagpipe burst upon their triumphant ears, and the banner of England floated in safety over their heads. So I hear in the dim distance the first notes of the jubilee rising from the broken hearts of millions. Soon, very soon, you shall hear it at the gates of the citadel, and the Stars and Stripes shall guarantee liberty from the lakes to the gulf. [Great applause.]

SPEECH OF HORACE GREELEY.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: The spirit that finds encouragement, the spirit which sees the certain victory in the present repulse—that spirit will surely save the Republic. I never doubted that the North was strong enough to sustain the Union. I never feared that the rebellion was strong enough to prevail over the loyalty of the country; but when I have looked in the faces of our fellow-citizens here—when I have seen the Copperheadism of New-York exult, as I know it did exult, when last Thursday's news—happily, not true—of disasters on the Rappahannock reached us, I have feared that that spirit might destroy the Republic. ["Never."] I hope that that spirit has seen its worst days. I hope that it has lost its strength and that the day of exultation to them, but of calamity to us, is passed away. I do not ask how long God shall try us by reverses and disappointments and, it may be, disasters. I do not ask, nor care, since I know it will not be one day too long. If we need more trials, we shall have more trials, and if we are worthy to triumph now, we shall find this rebellion disappear like the dew of the morning. When the time shall come for it to fall, it will fall suddenly and utterly, and pass out of sight like a mist. [Cheers.] That I know, and if I could feel that the American people—I mean the people of the loyal States—were worthy to triumph this hour, I should know that there were no more hours of life for the rebellion. When the time shall come, we shall all see that the hand of God has been in this struggle from the beginning, making the friends of Slavery the bitterest and most effective enemies Slavery ever had, and making in all things the folly of man contribute to overthrow of the most pernicious and majestic system of torture and injustice, of vice and iniquity the world has ever seen. In this faith I stand, still believing, trusting, hoping, ready always for peace, all the time welcoming peace, but knowing that peace will never come until the nation shall have been perfected through trial and suffering, ready to welcome just, beneficent and lasting peace, and content with no other. [Loud and continued applause.]

When Mr. GREELEY retired the cries for Mr. GARRISON were resumed, and, in response to the unmistakable determination of the audience that he should say something, he made the following remarks:

SPEECH OF WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: I think somehow or other that you have mistaken me for some other man. [Laughter.] In one of the songs of the contrabands at Port Royal a line runs thus, "Dunno what the people want of me," and I am somewhat in the same bewilderment. [Renewed laughter.] I hardly know what you want of me after summoning to your presence my eloquent friend, WENDELL PHILLIPS, and receiving him so cordially; after showing, as you have shown your regard for the memory of JOHN BROWN, and after you have endorsed Gen. BUTLER, himself. [Applause.] If I should say anything against the rebellion, or against Slavery itself, I should be accused of stealing their thunder. [Laughter.] But I have been against the rebellion, root and branch, from the beginning. [Cheers.] I am for the abolition of the rebellion, and, therefore, as a matter of good sense and sound patriotism, I am for the abolition of Slavery whichis the cause of the rebellion. [Immense applause.] I would battle agains both. There must not be left after this struggle one slave to clank his chain upon the American soil; there must not be found a single slaveholder in all the land. [Renewed applause.] If you are for the Constitution, and it means liberty, I am for the Constitution; if you are for the Union, and it means liberty; I am for the Union; [great cheering;] but I would rather hear the word liberty than Constitution and Union a hundred times over. [Enthusiastic applause.] This struggle is a struggle for liberty or else it is waged without the protection and countenance of the Almighty. [Applause.] It is a struggle for liberty on the American soil, and as Slavery has made itself an outlaw, it is a struggle to save the South from her outlaw's curse, and makes it possible for her to sit sane and clothed in her right mind with free institutions. Then we can go on with hearts and hands united. [Applause.] The Copperheads of our times are lineal descendants of those who, in the days of the prophets, called "peace, peace," when those good men waged war upon iniquity. Now, I myself am a radical peace man, but it is impossible to have peace where there are two antagonistical elements—Slavery on the one hand, and peace on the other. We can only have peace when, by the grace of God, the entire people are ranged on the side of Freedom. [Applause.] To-morrow I shall attend the Twenty-ninth Anniversary of the American Anti-Slavery Society, and I trust in God there will be no need of celebrating another, except to complete the third decade of its organization. I am for the abolition of the rebellion, for the abolition of Slavery, and for the abolition of this Anti-Slavery Society; and those who want that Society abolished must do all in their power, at once and forever, to put down Slavery. [Laughter.] ABRAHAM LINCOLN has shown his hostility to Abolitionism by proclaiming emancipation to 3,000,000 slaves, and I thank him for it with all my heart, (applause,) during which Mr. GARRISON resumed his seat.

There were other calls for speaker's, but Mr. RUSSELL stepped forward and declared the meeting adjourned, when the audience dispersed.

Correction.

CAMP OF PAROLE, ANNAPOLIS, Md.,
Friday, May 8, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A letter from your correspondent, published in Monday's paper, giving an account of the brilliant affair of the Sixth New-York cavalry, does great injustice to the first squadron. All of the regiment acted splendidly, but as the first held its position in the advance, from the time of crossing at Kelly's Ford until the night of the engagement, it is but justice to the brave men who compose it, that the error should be corrected. Your correspondent says "that when the charge was sounded, an advance guard of twenty men were sent out, and that the second squadron went ahead of the first; that the third came up, and seeing the first without officers, ordered them to follow." All present know that when the charge was made, the first squadron went ahead, receiving the whole fire of the enemy, and in a hand-to-hand fight, broke them before the others could come up. In this fight all the officers of the first squadron were either wounded or unhorsed. Please make this correction in your next.

ΙΩΔΗΣ.

OF ALL REMEDIAL AGENTS, IODINE stands preeminent. The amount of ability, zeal and assiduity which has been devoted to the elucidation of its effects upon the

has not been exceeded in the instance of any other article in Materia Medica, and it is acknowledged to possess very great powers in the cure of many obstinate diseases, over which other remedies have little or no influence.

Iodine was discovered in the year 1812, and received its name from the Greek word which heads this article. It is an elementary body, obtained from seaweed, is very volatile, and has great control over

SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.

It acts upon the

HEART,
LIVER, KIDNEYS,
DIGESTIVE ORGANS AND GLANDULAR SYSTEM.

It neutralizes metallic mercury and all the mercurial compounds that can possibly occur in the living body.

THE TONIC

operation of Iodine is evinced by its strengthening the digestive organs and increasing the appetite. In cases of Dyspepsia, Emaciation and Debility, an increased nutrition of the body is the result of the employment of Iodine. The patient recovers flesh, strength and color; hitherto pale, relaxed and feeble, he becomes full, strong and florid.

The unparalleled success in private practice and the indorsement of

enables us to recommend

IODINE WATER.

A solution of pure Iodine in pure water, as a specific for the cure of Scrofula in all its manifold forms, Consumption, Cancer, Heart, Liver and Kidney diseases, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Affections, Female Weaknesses, Dyspepsia, Syphilis, and the only remedy for the successful eradication of Mercurial Disease.

Its genuineness as a pure solution, and its excellence as a medicine, are attested by Dr. Chilton, Prof. Parker, Prof. Booth, Dr. Whitney, and others equally known to science.
